April, 1945.

Of the early history of the Chittenden family in England, there are records from the 12th and 13th centuries, of Chittendens in the county of Kent, as well as in the vicinity of Canterbury. Late in the 1800's the name was common near Cranbrook in Kent County. The spelling of the name varied during the ages as it is recorded as Chillendene, Chitlenden, Chittendene, etc. in different parts of England. A Thomas Chillendene, who was an architect, was Prior of Canterbury cathedral, and doubtless worked on its repairs or reconstruction in 1397:- perhaps on the Chillendene Porch. Others, with slight variations in this spelling, were Priors in 1263 and 1270. One of them became a bishop, although confirmation of this position by the Pope was withheld. Sometimes the "ll's" of the name were crossed, indicating "tl", which helps the belief that the name originated from "Jot-ten-den", meaning the Home-of-the-Jutes. In fact, some authorities are inclined to identify the family name with the first Danish settlement, in Kent, possibly at the time of the Hengist and Horsa invasion. Another suggestion,* from England, cites the possibility that a Chittenden ancestor was one of the Flemish cloth workers brought into England by King Edward III; and certain it is that Kent County was the scene of numerous yeoman clothiers for along period of time. But until further evidence can establish otherwise, the origin of the name seems best ascribed to the Danish derivation, or the "Home-of-the-Jutes", with implied ancestry in Denmark.

One or more of the families claimed the use of a Coat of Arms. Its authenticity, however, may be doubted. Its designation is as follows:- "He beareth azure. On a chevron argent, three garbs, proper, between three mullets (or stars), or. By the name of Chittenden of Staffordshire, and descends to that name and family." Although the Herald's College of London lacks this information, it is possible that this Shield of Arms may be genuine.

Robert C. of the County of Kent, was born about 1560. He married Ellynor Hatche in 1583 and they had four sons;- Thomas, born in Wapping in 1584; John, 1586; Nathaniel, 1590 (who had a son Nathaniel, 1615); and William, 1594. From a recorded will, some of these facts are confirmed when John Hatche, yeoman, of Tenterden, Kent, under date of March 23, 1628/9, made certain bequests to his sister Ellynor Chittenden and to her sons Thomas, John and William, and to her grandson Nathaniel. Thomas and William left the mother country and became early pioneers in America.

THOMAS was the first pioneer of the Chittenden name in America. He came to Scituate, Massachusetts, in 1635 and became the ancestor of our branch of the family. His brother William (1594-1660) arrived in 1639 and settled in Guilford, Conn. as the head of that branch. William had been a major in the English army in the Netherlands during the Thirty Years' War and it was one of his descendants (Thomas, b. in Guilford, 1730) who, after some experience in state offices in Conn., moved to Vermont and served for 18 years as its first governor, until his death in 1797. It was during his governorship that the independent commonwealth of Vermont joined the Union.

The following chart outlines the direct ancestry of the branch of the Massachusetts family descended from Thomas Chittenden.

It is interesting to note the occupations of our ancestors, through the years. As were other early settlers of Massachusetts, the first descendants were farmers;- clearing the land and obtaining their living from the soil. Interruptions necessarily occurred through military duties in their defense against the Indians, as in the cases of the first Isaac and his son, Capt. Israel. The early Chittendens served the Town of Scituate also, in performing various civic duties. At the time of Israel Jr., they devoted some activity to shipbuilding as a small local industry, but farming continued to be the chief livelihood through Calvin's time. One tract of shore land in Scituate is still known as the Chittenden boat yard. (see under Israel Jr.) It was in the development of farm lands that Calvin worked to reduce the salt marsh areas of Malden and Chelsea in 1789. Two of his sons, however, took up other activities;- Ebenezer went to sea, and Samuel became a bridge builder and later developed real estate in the lower part of Chelsea. In the next (VIII) generation, Samuel went into industry, chiefly in Conn., and Charles devoted himself to house building and became a superintendent with the Boston Gas Light Co. Whatever prosperity he obtained was through real estate.

Up through the eighth generation, the schooling acquired, was necessarily, very limited and mostly consisted of self-education. But in the next generation (IX), some higher education was obtained. Martha Cotton and Ella L. Chittenden studied for the teaching profession and Emily Chittenden became a physician-missionary among the Indians. In the tenth generation, college training was acquired by several. This resulted in various occupations such as teaching, music, nursing, scientific agriculture, mining geology, civil and electrical engineering, architecture, micro-petrography, advertising and general business. But farming was still in the blood and a livelihood still possible from the soil and from poultry, as exemplified by some of the descendants in Duxbury in the early 1900s.

I. Thomas Chittenden. 1584 - 1669.

Thomas, the son of Robert, came with his wife Rebecca and two sons from Wapping, County Kent, England, to Scituate, in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, in 1635.

The ship "Increase of London", Robert Lee, master, sailed from Hawk-hurst, Kent, late in April, 1635, arriving in Boston at the end of July. On board were Thomas Chittenden, a linen weaver, aged 51; his wife Rebecca,, aged 40 and two sons:- Isaac, 10 and Henry, 6.

They brought a certificate from the minister of Wapping, stating as to his conformity to the Church of England (Hutten P.61) and they joined Rev. Mr. Lothrop's church Feb. 12, 1637. Thomas received a grant of land for a house lot on Kent St., in Scituate, in 1638. This was the first home of the Chittendens on record in America. That he played a prominent part in the early settlement of Scituate is well attested and records mention that he took the oath of fidelity to the King at later periods of his life.

In his will, Thomas called himself a weaver, so he doubtless continued this occupation up to about 1668. He is mentioned as one of the early farmers of Scituate and as one of the Conihasset Partners in 1646. He died in 1688/9 leaving legacies to his sons Isaac and Henry and to Isaac's son Benjamin. He and his sons and grandsons were known in Scituate as the "Men of Kent".

Our branch of the family is continued through his son Isaac II.

TO THE HONORABLE THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
FROM THE HONORABLE THE VICE-CHANCELLOR OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
JANUARY 10, 1911

Dear Sir:
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 9th inst. in relation to the proposed purchase of the book "The History of the University of Chicago" by the University of Chicago Press.

The book is a valuable work and is one of the most complete histories of the University of Chicago. It is a work of great interest and value to the University and to the public.

I am sure that the purchase of this book will be of great benefit to the University and to the public. I am sure that the purchase of this book will be of great benefit to the University and to the public.

I am, Sir, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
The Vice-Chancellor of the University of Chicago

Isaac, the elder son of Thomas, I, was proprietor of an Inn, licensed in 1666 and was very active in Scituate town affairs between 1656 and 1674. He served as constable, selectman, representative for Plymouth Co. and collector of Excise. The latter appointment required that taxes due might be collected in the form of iron, tar, boards, cysters etc. He was one of the non-commissioned officers of the Scituate Militia and a member of the Committee of the Council of War preparatory for troubles with the Awashonk Indians. Upon this Council devolved the task of disarming or imprisoning the Indians at Saconett; supplying ammunition, scouts and guards. He was appointed "Press Master" in 1675 "for the pressing of able and fit men of Scituate, to go forth on the present expeditions against the Indians" during King Phillip's War. It is possible that he lost his life (or that of his son Isaac) in an Indian assault on the town May 20, 1676. A son, Benjamin, certainly served under Capt. Michael Pierce and fell in the hard Rehobeth fight with the Indians under Canochet, Mar. 26, 1676.

In April, 1646, Isaac married Martha, the oldest daughter of widow Ann Vinall, who had come to Scituate in 1636 with three children. Their children, of the third generation, were:- Sarah and Rebecca (twins), 1646; Mary, 1648; Israel, 1651; Stephen, 1654; Elizabeth, 1658; Isaac, 1663; and Benjamin, date unknown. He acquired several tracts of land in and about Scituate.

Our branch is continued through Israel III, later known as Capt. Israel Chittenden.

III.

CAPT. ISRAEL CHITTENDEN. 1651-1722.

Israel, son of Isaac II, was also prominent in the affairs of Scituate. He was made Ensign in the Militia in 1689 and Lieutenant under Sir William Shippe, in the unfortunate expedition to Canada in 1690 and he was commissioned Captain in 1695. He served the town as Surveyor and in 1690 as one of the Selectmen. "the Selectmen shall take care and see that the poor be provided for and are hereby empowered to relieve them,---- are required to give in a list of names of such as mispend their time",--- as well as those who "neglect, through prophaneness and slothfullness, to come to the public worship of God."

The building of small ships was started in Scituate about this time. He accumulated considerable property, and at his death in 1722 property was bequeathed to Israel Jr. and others. It is uncertain as to the disposal of the original Chittenden homestead on Kent St., but it remained in the family till 1800.

Israel married, in 1678, Deborah Baker, daughter of Rev. Nicholas Baker, who had settled in Hingham, from Hingham, England, in 1635 and ordained as Minister in Scituate in 1660. Israel's children were:- Nicholas, 1678; Isaac, 1681; Deborah, 1684; Anna, 1686; Israel Jr., 1690 and Elizabeth, 1693.

Our branch is continued through Israel Jr. IV.

Israel Jr., son of Capt. Israel III, married Mary Pickels in 1713, and later, the widow of Benj. Turner. Their children were:- Capt. Isaac, b. 1719; Israel, 1715; Mary, 1722; Nathaniel, 1724; Anna, 1726; Nicholas, 1731 and Hannah, 1736.

Israel was probably connected with the Chittenden Ship Yard, on the Norwell side of the North River in (then) Scituate, as the Chittendens built and owned boats from this yard before 1709. One was named "Sea flower" in 1714, his brother Isaac being one of the owners; and his son Nathaniel (b. 1724) doubtless continued ownership of the yard as well as Nathaniel Jr. (b. 1751), who with his wife, Ruth Foster, lived near the mouth of the Second Herring Brook. A large number of boats, of limited size, were built here. There was a Town Landing in this yard up to 1799; and a tablet, (erected by the North River Historical Society), is marked "Site of the Chittenden Ship Yard, 1690-1871". Members of the Chittenden family are buried in the "Old First Parish Cemetery", Opposite a school house, on the road to Greenbush.

Our branch is continued through Capt. Isaac V.

V.

CAPT. ISAAC CHITTENDEN. 1719-1782.

Isaac, son of Israel Jr. IV, was born in Scituate Sept. 28, 1719. He undoubtedly worked in the Chittenden Ship Yard and had some sea-faring experience, as he was later recorded as a mariner as well as a yeoman. Boston records his marriage to Persis Tinney Feb. 14, 1744. Their children were:- Calvin, 1746 (probably in Scituate) and Isaac Jr., Sept. 21, 1761 (Boston records).

While still a young man, Isaac moved from Scituate to the southerly part of Boston, and by 1765 we find that the family had moved to a new home in Malden, where he lived until his death Apr. 3, 1782. The History of Malden records that in 1762 Isaac C. of Boston purchased a 64 acre estate in what is now Everett. The present Elm St. crosses this area, some of which, later, became a part of Woodlawn Cemetery, which contains our Chittenden lot. The property was sold by Isaac's grandson, Samuel, in 1813. It doubtless was the home of Calvin and his numerous children.

It is quite possible that Capt. Isaac, late in life, married a second time. It is rather confusing that there seem to be several Isaac Chittendens about this time, both in Middlesex and in Plymouth Counties. One of them, probably our Capt. Isaac, married a Mary Turner in 1780. Facts which dovetail nicely together and point toward that assumption, are as follows:-

Persis Tinney :-

1761. Boston records name Persis as the mother of Isaac Jr.

1773. Land sold by Isaac and his wife Persis, May 8.

1777. Malden records the death of the wife of Capt. Isaac, Nov. 4.

This was presumably, Persis.

Mary Turner :-

1780. Record of an Isaac C. of Malden, marrying a Mary Turner of Scituate, in Scituate.

1782. Capt. Isaac died.

1789. Calvin mortgaged some land to a Mary C. of Scituate "formerly wife of Isaac C. of Malden".

1792. A tombstone, just outside the little Greenbush Cemetery in Scituate, (seen in 1906), is marked to the memory of Mrs. Mary Chittenden, wife of Capt. Isaac C., who died Dec. 26, 1792, aged 53 years. Her will mentions several Turner and Chittenden nephews and nieces.

Our branch is continued through Calvin VI.

CALVIN CHITTENDEN. 1746 - 1807.

Calvin, the son of Capt. Isaac C. V, was born in Scituate in 1746, and moved with his family to Malden when about 16 years of age. Most of his life was, therefore, spent in Malden; - in the part which later became Everett, near the border of Chelsea. He had a reputation as an excellent farmer; was handy with tools, and was remembered by a granddaughter as a man who still talked "with a broad English dialect".

Both before and after his marriage, he doubtless occupied the homestead farm of his father. In 1771 he married Sarah Pratt of Malden. He had the following children of the VII generation, all born in Malden, according to the Town records.

Ebenezer, Nov. 17, 1771. Nancy, Mar. 30, 1777. Benjamin, Oct. 5, 1782.

Sarah, Mar. 9, 1773. Samuel, Apr. 14, 1779. Persis, Jan. 5, 1785.

Nathaniel, Feb. 2, 1775. Mary, Mar. 19, 1781. Charles, Oct. 2, 1791.

It is recorded that he had two other children, who died in infancy.

Calvin's name appears recorded in several real estate transactions. Probably a part of his father's estate, - a house and land in the southerly part of Boston, - was sold by him and Isaac (both "husbandmen" of Malden) in 1786. He was engaged in reclaiming salt marsh land in Malden and Chelsea, "within the dyke"; building a dam in Island End River etc.

Calvin was thirty years old at the start of the War of the Revolution, but there is no record of his enlistment in the armed forces. The Calvin Chittenden home, while in Malden (now Everett), was near the Chelsea line. The family attended The Rumney Marsh Meeting House, distant about two miles to the eastward, near the beach. The activities of some of his sons were in connection with the development of Chelsea, and Calvin lived long enough to see the building of the Chelsea-Charlestown bridge; the Salem Turnpike in 1803; and the Newburyport Turnpike (to the west of his home), in 1804.

At the age of 61, Calvin died, very suddenly, June 7, 1807; and his wife Sarah, aged 54, died Sept. 30, 1808.

Our branch continues through Ebenezer, VII.

Ebenezer, the son of Calvin, VI, was born in Malden, Nov. 17, 1771. In 1793 he purchased some orchard lands, possibly part of the estate of Capt. Isaac C., his grandfather. He was a sea-faring man, sailing on some of the ships of Joseph Ingraham of Boston, chiefly in the molasses and rum trade with the West Indies. He later became Capt. of one of the Ingraham ships.

On Feb. 20, 1803, Ebenezer married Martha (Pattey) Ingraham of Boston. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Eliot, D.D., in Boston. Pattey received, among the wedding gifts from her parents, a set of Lowestoft china, a part of which is still preserved in the family. Also included in her trousseau, were pieces of embroidered chintz dress goods, as a gift from her sea-faring brother, Wm. Ingraham, which are also treasured by descendants. We can trace Pattey's Lowestoft china through her daughter Caroline, to her granddaughter Caroline, to the latter's cousin, Ella L. Chittenden, to Ella's niece, Charlotte Elizabeth C. and to the present owner, (1940) Caroline Chittenden Green, the daughter of G. Herbert Chittenden. Ebenezer and Pattey had the following children, VIII.

Martha Ingraham C.	-	born	Dec. 23, 1803, in Chelsea.
Persis Charlotte C.	-	"	Oct. 23, 1805, in "
Caroline C.	-	"	Dec. 30, 1807, in Malden.
Samuel C.	-	"	Oct. 11, 1809, in "
Charles C.	-	"	Dec. 9, 1811, in Chelsea.

It is doubtful if Ebenezer followed the sea after his marriage and he apparently made little provision for his family after his death, June 25, 1820. He was only known during the last part of his short life as a generous hearted, genial and interesting seafaring man. For a while he was keeper of a tavern in Chelsea.

Ebenezer's widow, Martha, was left with four children, Persis having died earlier, the youngest, Charles, being only nine years old. She was fortunate, however, in having a sister, Mrs. Susan L. Hastings, "Sukey Hastings" who lived in No. Chelsea. Charles was sent there and doubtless obtained some early schooling while making his home with the Hastings family. Times were hard for "Pattey" Chittenden and letters of that time indicate various places of residence. She lived in Boston in 1832, and again in 1856. She had Ingraham relatives in Carlisle, spent many summers there, where she was often visited by her son Charles. She was a member of the Baptist Church of Carlisle (doubtless the same white church in the present Carlisle Town Square, which was built in 1811. In 1842 she transferred membership to the Baptist Church of Chelsea. In 1852 and in 1858 she was listed in the Chelsea directory as living on Broadway. She died in Chelsea, March 28, 1858 and was buried in the Chittenden lot of Woodlawn Cemetery, where a headstone marks her place.

Our branch continues through Charles, VIII.

TO THE EDITOR:
I am writing to you to inform you of the results of my research on the properties of the new material which I have discovered. The material has many interesting properties and I believe it will be of great value to the scientific community. I am enclosing a copy of my report for your information.

I am very grateful for the opportunity to share my findings with you. I am sure that your expertise will be of great help to me. I am looking forward to hearing from you soon. Please let me know if you need any more information. I am sure that I can provide it.

Charles, the youngest son of Ebenezer, VII, and Martha Ingraham Chittenden, was born in Chelsea Dec. 9. 1811. It is uncertain where the family lived at that time, but probably in the northern part, near the Malden line, and south of the present Woodlawn Cemetery, as some of his brothers and sisters are recorded as born in Malden (now Everett).

As a child under nine years of age, Charles was left fatherless and was brought up by his widowed mother and her sister, "Aunt Hastings", who lived in the northern part of Chelsea, now Revere, beside the old church. He was intimate, during his early life, with his cousins of the Abijah Hastings family. He probably also became acquainted early with the Bowdlear family, as Mary Rebecca B. also visited "Aunt Hastings" in her youth. She was later to become Charles' wife.

As a trade, Charles learned pump and block making, which was an important industry at that time, requiring considerable skill in the boring of logs in making wooden pipe. John Bowdlear, his future brother-in-law, was a noted pump maker in Roxbury. Later, the use of gas for house illumination became an important industry, so that as a young man, Charles also learned pipe and gas fitting.

However, Charles' early activity was in house building, in Chelsea, and dealing in real estate, which he continued throughout much of his life. The neighborhood of Bellingham Square was a rapidly growing portion of Chelsea. Some of his larger real estate developments were along Washington Ave., near Broadway, in the general location of the rear of the present City Hall. All these buildings were destroyed in the big Chelsea fire of 1908.

Charles' mother, Mrs. Ebenezer C. frequently visited her Ingraham relatives in Carlisle, where Charles often went; and on such occasions he again met his childhood friend, Mary Rebecca Bowdlear. On Jan. 10, 1836, Charles Chittenden and Mary R. Bowdlear were married in Boston. The ceremony took place in Dr. Daniel Sharpe's Church on Charles St., (now the African Church), - close to the shore of the Charles River. "It was during a heavy storm of wind and rain, when the bride and groom were nearly blown in the river". Mary was the daughter of John and Mary (Sealey) Bowdlear of Boston. For a few months of that year, they lived in Boston; but in July, 1837, they went to live in Chelsea, and transferred membership in the Second Baptist Church of Boston to that of Chelsea Baptist Church. It is believed that they lived on Central Avenue, not far from the home of his uncle Samuel Chittenden; but shortly afterwards, they made their home at 51 Washington Ave., at the corner of Cherry St. Here the following children of the IX generation were born:

Charlotte Bowdlear C.	- May 6, 1838.
Charles Henry C.	- Sept. 24, 1840.
Albert Ames C.	- Oct. 1, 1842.
Mary Caroline C.	- Sept. 17, 1844.
Franklin Parker C.	- Oct. 15, 1846.
Samuel Newman C.	- Jan. 15, 1849.
Ella Louise C.	Aug. "25, 1851.
Minetta Ingraham C.	- Mar. 27, 1855.

One of their children, Mary Caroline, died in infancy, March 5, 1847, but the rest of the children spent their early life in Chelsea.

They were intimate with their cousins Martha, John and Caroline Cotton in Boston. Sally Flagg C., the widow of Samuel C. (VII), affectionately known as "Aunt Chittenden", lived for many years nearby, on Broadway. Through his mother-in-law, Mary Sealey Bowdlear, Charles purchased the family lot in Woodlawn Cemetery, to the north of Chelsea. The deed for the lot is dated Nov. 7, 1863. In his early married life, Charles took up music, to the extent of playing the bass viol in the Baptist Church in Chelsea. In 1840 he purchased a parlor organ. Charles had a hobby for old clocks, which he bought, repaired, and remodeled. Two of these clocks and the parlor organ were in the possession of Roger C. Chittenden in 1944.

The home on Washington Ave, corner of Cherry St., was originally a part of the Bellingham-Cary Estate, with its orchard of apples, cherries, quinces etc. There was a small pool of water adjoining their home, which made skating possible for the children.

Charles continued the business of housebuilding, during the 1840's and 1850's. In 1841 he took an apprentice named Jacob F. Dow, "for learning the carpentry trade, until he would be 21". Numerous records of real estate transactions, mortgages etc., are recorded in the Chelsea Registry of Deeds. All the Chelsea property was destroyed in the fire of 1908. Some property at 3 Murray Place, Boston, was taken by the City in 1896, for the building of the Paul Revere School. Some of his properties acquired later, as on Harvard St. Dorchester, are still intact, tho' out of the family.

The Winnisimmet Ferry served the family for trips to Boston, beginning in 1831. Annual tickets, or passes, were used by the family. Charlotte accompanied her father daily, in 1855, while attending High School in Boston.

Due to his knowledge of pipe and gas fitting, Charles obtained employment in Boston, with the Boston Gas Light Co. In Dec. 1854 he was made Superintendent of Service Pipes. The office of this company was then situated at 102 Washington St., and later on West St. In 1856 he was put in charge of the Gas Holders, situated at the corner of Lehigh and Federal Sts., as they were then laid out. This was in the days when the Worcester and the Old Colony Railroads had their depots on Beach St, and State St. reached only to the Custom House, which was actually on the waterfront. Lehigh St. ran from Albany St. to Federal St., but the building of the South Station, with the tracks running into it, obliterated Lehigh St., and this corner became 491 Federal St. The Gas Co. Yards were separated from the railroad tracks by a high brick wall and a high wooden fence, which surrounded also, the 2¹/₂ story brick house, into which the family moved in 1856, and lived for many years. The site, now taken by further spread of the railroad tracks, was close to the present Dorchester Ave., on the city side of the bridge over the inlet to South Bay. Nearby Harvard St. was one of the city residential streets, and the location of the Baptist Church, where the family maintained pew #7, for several years. Here Mrs. Charles Chittenden died on Aug. 25, 1877, and was buried in the Chittenden lot at Woodlawn Cemetery.

In 1877, Charles purchased property on Harvard St., Dorchester. Soon after his second marriage, to Miss Catherine Paine Clark, of Boston, Charles moved to 81 Harvard St., where he died Aug. 29, 1886.

In the meantime, the Chelsea real estate had increased in value, as it was located in the Bellingham Square section. His investments in land in Saugus, as well as in Hull, were, however, not so fortunate.

Charles Henry, son of Charles (VIII) and Mary Rebecca, was born in Chelsea, Mass., Sept. 24, 1840 and died in Danvers, June 8, 1886. He was buried in the Chittenden lot in Woodlawn Cemetery. He served in the Civil war and saw action in the South, where he was wounded in the head and spent several months in Andersonville prison. A letter to his parents give an interesting description of a night raid, in an attempt to destroy a Confederate river boat.

Charles married as his first wife, Mary Abby ---(?), born May 5, 1840, who died Sept. 3, 1865. They had one child who died in infancy, July 19, 1860, at the age of 7 mos., 19 ds.

On Feb. 22, 1871, he married Henrietta Whitney Michie, in Providence R.I. For most of their married life, they lived in his father's former home, 51 Washington Ave., Chelsea.

Henrietta W. Michie was one of the five children of John Michie of Yarmouth, N.S. She was born in Yarmouth Dec. 2, 1841 and died in Chelsea Oct. 20, 1885.

John Michie, son of Wm. M. and Catherine Langland, was born in Carseburn, near Forfar, Scotland. Henrietta's mother was Bithia Davoe Robertson, of French Huguenot ancestry, with records of the family dating back to King Robert de Bruce of Scotland. Some of the Davoe wedding china is still in the family.

Children of the X generation are:-

Ella minetta C. --- b. Dec. 18, 1871, buried July 5, 1872.

Laura Mary C. ----- b. Dec. 21, 1872.

Warren C. died in infancy. Laura remembers him.

Martha Ingraham Cotton C. -- b. Sept 4, 1878.

Alice Bithia C. ---- b. Nov. 29, 1880.

X

LAURA MARY CHITTENDEN.

After the death of her parents, Laura was brought up in Dorchester Mass., and Woodstock, Conn. and received her education in Boston. She married Alfred P. Rexford April 4, 1900 in Dorchester and resided in or near Boston. Recent years have been spent in St. Petersburg, Fla., and now they bought a home there as a permanent residence.

Alfred Pitman Rexford was born in Dorchester, Nov. 20, 1873. He is descended from the father of Wm. Penn, the Quaker, his ancestors coming from Kent, England, as did the Chittendens; while on the Pitman side, he is descended from Gen. Howe, of the British forces during the Revolution. Alfred served 21 years with the U.S. Sub-treasury in Boston and 20 years more with the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, until reaching retirement age.

Children of the XI generation:-

Elliot Pitman Rexford, b. Jan. 15, 1903, in Dorchester. Educated at Boston Latin; Gen. Elect. Engineering School; M.I.T. with degrees B.S. 1926, M.S., 1927. TO THE HONORABLE CHIEF OF BUREAU
OF MINES
WASHINGTON, D. C.

SIR:
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th inst. and in reply to inform you that the same has been forwarded to the proper authorities for their consideration.

I am, Sir, very respectfully,
Yours very truly,
J. H. MANNING

JOHN H. MANNING, Chief of Bureau of Mines, U. S. Department of the Interior

Enclosed for the Bureau of Mines are two copies of a report on the results of the investigation of the cause of the explosion at the mine at ... on the 10th inst. The report is herewith submitted for the Bureau of Mines and for the Department of the Interior.

After the death of her parents, Mattie lived in Dorchester and Canterbury, N.H. She attended the New Church school for Girls in Waltham, Mass. She married Edward Damon Penniman, Nov. 28, 1900 and lived in Dorchester, where their three children were born.

Children of XI generation:-

Doris Augusta P. ----- b. July 18, 1901.
 Muriel Chittenden P. -- b. July 7, 1905.
 Irma Knowles P. ----- b. Jan. 24, 1908.

Edward D. Penniman was born March 25, 1870, in Eastham, Mass. He is of the X generation from ancestors coming over from Yorkshire, Eng., in 1632. There is a Coat of Arms in the branch of the family coming from Wapping, Co. Kent, in 1635. On his father's side, an ancestor married a Mayo and a Mayo married a Doane. On his mother's side, a Knowles married a Doane. Some of the Knowles and Doanes settled in Eastham, Mass. in 1755. He traces back to the Mayflower on both sides of the family. He ran a hardware store in Dorchester. They were divorced in 1908. Edward died May 1, 1945, in Eastham, where he was buried.

Mattie's second marriage was to Peter M. Matison, of Hartford, Conn., on Feb. 8, 1915. They live in Miami, Fla. After being hit by an auto, and later breaking a hip, Mattie died May 27, 1945, and was buried in Miami.

Peter Matison was born March 5, 1873, in Sidney, Australia, the son of Admiral Michael Louis Matison, of the British Navy. Peter came to the U.S. in 1905, became naturalized, and is a veteran of the Spanish War. They had no children.

Charlotte, daughter of Charles (VIII) and Mary Rebecca, was born in Chelsea, Mass., May 6, 1838. Most of her short life was spent there, where she attended the Carey School and for a while, the High School. She was active in the local Baptist Church Society.

The family was, at that time, living on Washington Ave., near the corner of Chestnut St., in the section now devoted to the grounds and buildings of Chelsea City Hall.

As the oldest child of the Charles Chittenden family, Charlotte assumed part care of her younger brothers and sisters, and also was devoted to her relatives;- especially to her Aunts Martha and Caroline as well as to her Grandmothers Chittenden and Bowdlear, as indicated by her early letters and diary. She frequently accompanied her father on visits to relatives in Carlisle and the family lived not too far away to visit "Aunt Hastings" in Revere.

In March, 1855, she entered the High and Normal School in Boston, which was then situated on Mason St., close to the office of the Boston Gas Co., where her father was employed. This required daily trips by ferry from Chelsea, usually with her father. She made use of the Boston Public Library, which was then situated on Franklin St. Early records indicate that she was interested in the poetical writings and life of George Herbert. Doubtless through such interest, the name of her brother's son later originated.

Early in 1856, the family moved to Boston, but the young girl lived only a short time to enjoy the new home and associations of Boston, as she died of Typhoid Fever, on July 12, 1856. She was buried in the Chittenden lot in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Albert, son of Charles (VIII) and Mary Rebecca, was born in Chelsea Oct. 1, 1842. Most of his early life and schooling was in Boston, where the family moved when he was 14. With his father Charles, he was employed by the Boston Gas Co., both before and after the Civil war. He was application clerk and assistant to the treasurer, at the Gas Office on West St. He was with this Co. for over ~~##~~ 30 years.

As a young man Albert was interested in cabinet making and some of the results of this early hobby are still in the ~~possession~~ possession of the family and relatives. He dealt to a moderate degree in real estate.

In 1862 Albert joined the First Corps of Cadets of Boston, which became the 45th Massachusetts Regiment in the Civil War. His part in its North Carolina campaign is described in his own chapter on the Color Guard, in the History of this regiment. He later served as Lieutenant of Company H in the 100 days campaign of the 6th Mass. Regiment, with headquarters at Fort Delaware.

In 1862 he became a member of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, in So. Boston, and kept up a correspondence, during the war, with the Rector, Rev. J.I.T. Coolidge. Here, too, friendship developed with the family of David Clapp, Senior Warden of St. Matthews, whose son, David, was one of his Civil war friends. This resulted in his marriage to Caroline Tucker Clapp, Oct. 1, 1867. The ceremony was performed in St. Matthews Church, Rev. J.I.T. Coolidge officiating. Although ancestors of both families were settlers in Mass. in the 1830's, it is believed that this was the first union of the Clapp and Chittenden families.

Caroline Tucker Clapp was born in So. Boston, July 28, 1844.; the daughter of David Clapp, Boston printer and publisher. When 16, she attended the Rev. R.F. Buel School for Girls, in Providence, R.I. Later she attended the Boston High and Normal School, graduating in 1864. She taught school in Milton for a year or so. She was Sec. of her High School Class.

The young couple started housekeeping in Dorchester, where Albert bought a home at 282 Washington St., next door to the Noyes-Tucker family, who were connections on both sides of the family. They joined the parish of St. Mary's Episcopal Church on Bowdoin St. After this building burned, in the late '80's, Mrs. Chittenden and Mrs. Wm.W. Bellamy were prime movers in starting its Mission Church at Grove Hall. This developed into the present St. Mark's Church on Columbia Rd., near Washington St.

Children of the (X) generation, born in the Washington St. home, were:-

George Herbert C.	- - Aug. 12, 1868.
Winthrop Clapp C.	- - Aug. 5, 1871. (died in infancy).
Charlotte Elizabeth C.	- - Jan. 12, 1873.
Albert Percival C.	- - Nov. 12, 1874.

Later, land inherited from David Clapp was distributed, and in 1890 Albert and Carrie built a new home at 45 Salcombe St., on Jones' Hill, near Upham's Corner. This was their home for the rest of their lives.

Albert and Mrs. C. occasionally attended Conventions of Civil War Veterans and visited old battle fields of the South. In 1913 Mrs. C. took a trip through California, the North-west and Canada. Later, Albert took pleasure in visiting various mining camps in the West, in connection with the work of his younger son, and in some actual gold prospecting with Leon S. Griswold. At 80, he accompanied Percival and Nathalia on a winter trip through the Carribbean.

Albert's wife died Nov. 11, 1917, and was buried in the Clapp tomb in the old Dorchester-North burying ground at Upham's Corner. Albert continued living, with his daughter, at 45 Salcombe St. After passing his 90th birthday, he died Oct. 6, 1932. He was buried, with a military funeral, in the Chittenden lot at Woodlawn. As vestryman and warden, he served St. Mary's Church for many years. He was a member of the "Old School Boys of Boston" Association; - was active in Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and the Co.A. Associates of the 45th Regiment. As the oldest living member of the Cadet Veterans, he had attended their reunions up to the time of his death.

X GEORGE HERBERT CHITTENDEN. 1868-1937.

Born in Dorchester, Aug. 12, 1868, Herbert prepared for college at the Roxbury Latin School and graduated from Harvard in 1891. His college course, while general, gave emphasis to electrical engineering and modern languages. He was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society in his senior year.

After teaching in Hingham, as Preceptor of Derby Academy, he joined the staff of the Hopkinson School of Boston, where he taught languages etc. for many years. His summers at that time, were largely devoted to travel, when he visited most of the countries of Europe. He was in the Hawaiian Islands in the summer of 1898, when the United States flag was first raised over that territory. (He told of going surf bathing with Pres. Dole). Summer trips also included Idaho and California, where his brother was engaged in mining. Always devoted to books, he built up a substantial library.

Herbert married Mrs. Adena Harvey Sheldon Nov. 12, 1910 at Cabot, Vt. After a trip to Europe, they settled in half of the remodeled home at 45 Salcombe St., Dorchester. As a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, he served the Vestry for many years as Clerk of the Parish, while his father was Warden. Later they purchased a home in West Roxbury. About this time he dropped out of teaching and became active in the business of his father-in-law, serving as director and Business Manager of the National Drug Co. of Philadelphia, for many years. Summer vacations were still spent at the ancestral Kimball-Harvey farm in Cabot, Vt. When the girls became located elsewhere, they sold the W. Roxbury house and returned to 45 Salcombe St., where Herbert died Nov. 10, 1937. They had one daughter, Caroline Clapp Chittenden, b. on Salcombe St., (rather, in the hospital up just around the corner), Apr. 5, 1917.

Herbert's ashes were deposited in the Clapp tomb, in the Dorchester-North Cemetery, Upham's Corner.

Adena Harvey was born in Cabot, Vt., June 28, 1874: - the daughter of George Francis Harvey (b. Woodbury, Vt., Aug. 22, 1843) and Francelia Katherine Kimball (b. Barton, Vt., Jan. 14, 1851). She studied at the Boston Conservatory of Music and attended Lasell Seminary and Dana Hall School. She had a three year old daughter, Francelia Sheldon, by a previous marriage, who was legally adopted by G. Herbert C. Her membership in the D.A.R. can be traced through both her father's and her mother's ancestry. Her mother was descended from David Thompson, Gent., of County Cromarty, Scotland, who settled on Thompson's Island, Boston Harbor, in May, 1619.

Francelia was born in Glenside, Pa., May 11, 1907, to William E. Sheldon and Adena Harvey. She was baptized in St. Nicholas Church, there. After the remarriage of her mother in 1910, she was legally adopted by G. Herbert Chittenden. She was brought up in Dorchester and later in West Roxbury: graduated from the Boston Girl's Latin School in 1926; took the B.A. degree at Mt. Holyoke College in 1930 and served as Children's Librarian in the Boston Public Library System, until her marriage. In the family home in West Roxbury, she was married to Allen Walbridge Goddard, June 30, 1933. The ceremony was performed in Emanuel Church, West Roxbury. Their home is in California, where Allen has been engaged in teaching and as Superintendent of Schools in Whittier.

Allen W. Goddard was born in Baraboo, Wis., April 11, 1907. He graduated from California University, Los Angeles, in 1929, where he majored in History. He further prepared himself for teaching through graduate studies at Harvard and the University of Southern California. His father Louis Allen Goddard, was a Congregational minister in Los Angeles. An earlier ancestor, the Rev. Merrill Richardson, served as pastor of the New England Congregational Church of New York City, following Lyman Abbott. His mother was Fannie Walbridge of Cabot, Vt. (niece of George F. Harvey). She received an A.M. degree from the Univ. of Wisconsin and was a teacher for many years.

XI

CAROLINE CLAPP CHITTENDEN.

Born April 5, 1917, in St. Mary's Hospital, on the top of Jones' Hill, Carrie was educated in the Dorchester schools and the Boston Girl's Latin School. When the family moved to West Roxbury, she attended Wheaton College, then transferred to Boston University where she received her A.B. degree in 1940. She majored in literature and served in library work in the Boston Public Library System while completing her college studies. The 45 Salcombe St. home, which had served as her headquarters after her father's death in 1937, came into Caroline's possession on the death of her aunt, C. Elizabeth Chittenden, early in 1940. Happiness was revived in the old home, when Caroline was married to Herbert Franklin Green, Oct. 5, 1940. The ceremony was performed in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, with a reception at the home.

Herbert Franklin Green was born in Dorchester, July 4, 1906. He graduated from the High School of Commerce, Boston, and from the Mass. Institute of Technology, in 1929, where he specialized in Aeronautical Engineering. He has been employed in various oil concerns in New York, Ohio and Oklahoma; in research laboratories of the Ethyl Gasoline Corp. in Tulsa, Oklahoma and in Detroit, Michigan.

Children:-

Francelia Christine Green - b. March 26, 1942, in Tulsa, Okl.
Herbert Franklin Green Jr. - b. May 14, 1944, Detroit Mich.

Bessie, the only daughter of Albert A. and Caroline T.(Clapp) Chittenden, was born Jan. 12, 1873, in Dorchester, Mass. She was a small and delicate child, but had a gay and happy disposition. She was very popular and generally kept her friends laughing while she was with them. After attending the Dorchester grade and High schools, her love of small children induced her to study kindergarten. For some years she conducted private classes very successfully. She made one trip to Europe with her brothers and some of the cousins. She was a member of the D.A.R. and of a local Choral Society. She enjoyed playing the piano.

The death of her mother, to whom she was devoted, was a great shock to her, from which she never wholly recovered. She died May 24, 1940, after a long illness, and ~~was~~ her ashes were placed in the Dor. North burying ground at Upham's Corner.

ALBERT PERCIVAL CHITTENDEN.

Perce was born in Dorchester, Nov. 12, 1874. He was the youngest child of Albert A. and Caroline T.(Clapp) Chittenden. He graduated from the Boston English High School and Harvard, receiving his A.B. and A.M. degrees in 1897 and 1898.

Up to the time of World War I he was active in mining and engineering in the West and in Central America. Since then, under the firm name of Chittenden, Turner & Co., he was engaged in the dye stuff and chemical business, which included importing. His headquarters were on Long Wharf in Boston.

His first wife, Caroline Sayles Holls, of Pawtucket, R.I., whom he married Oct. 2, 1906, died March 10, 1910.

Perce served on many Harvard Club committees and seldom missed the Commencement Day gatherings in Cambridge. He was also a member of the Charles River Country Club, the City Club of New York, the Loyal Legion and the Episcopalian Club. He took several trips to Europe. Perce worked diligently in compiling this History of the Chittenden family.

Possessing a very cheerful, friendly disposition, he took great pleasure in doing for others. He died Jan. 30, 1943 and his ashes ~~will~~ are ~~in~~ buried in the Chittenden lot in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

He leaves his wife, Nathalia Carlson Chittenden of South St., Brighton, whom he married Sept. 29, 1914.

Frank, son of Charles (VIII), was born in Chelsea, Mass., Oct. 15, 1846. He was brought up there and in Boston. After his marriage, he lived in Dorchester and later in Milton, N.H. and in Stoughton, Mass., where he died March 2, 1908. He joined Battery A of the Boston Light Artillery before he was eighteen years old. Consent for his enlistment in the 56th Mass. Inf. was refused by his parents, but later they gave consent for his enlistment in Co. A, 42nd Mass. Infantry, July 14, 1864, for the 100 days Campaign. He received preliminary training at Readville, Mass., then took the steamer "McClellan" for a weeks trip to Washington and Alexandria Va. Here, at Camp Burile, they built log huts and went on guard duty: - aboard trains (where some fighting was necessary), and on picket and patrol duty around government wharves etc. He received his army discharge Nov. 11, 1864. He later served as letter carrier in Dorchester.

Frank married Eliza Ann Blake July 16, 1878, in Dorchester. They lived for some time at 81 Harvard St., next to his brother Newman, with whom he was at one time in business. Eliza Ann was of an old Dorchester family, dating back to the Blakes of the Revolution, from whom the D.A.R. "Blake House" was named. (chapter. She died in Stoughton, Dec. 9, 1934.

They had one child, of the X generation:-

Warren Blake C. b. June 30, 1880, in Dorchester.

WARREN BLAKE CHITTENDEN.

Warren's early years were spent at 81 Harvard St. Later he entered the employ of a Boston textile commission firm and as a traveling salesman, covered much of New England, New York and Michigan. He married Josie Alice Drake of Stoughton, Aug. 18, 1903 in Stoughton. They lived in Syracuse, N.Y. until they moved to Detroit, Mich., in 1910. After 1915 he was employed in the real estate developments of that section. Here he held the following positions in Masonry:- Worshipful Master of Ashlar Lodge #91; Thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason of the Michigan Sovereign Consistory; Royal Arch Mason of Peninsular Chapter #16; Knight Templar of Detroit Commandry #1; President of class of 83, knighted in 1925; Platoon and Company Commander in Detroit #1 Drill Corps; and Alternate Prelate in the Asylum work.

In 1933, they returned to the home of his widowed mother, 146 Park St., Stoughton, their present residence (1944).

Children, of the XI generation:-

Warren Herbert C. b. Oct. 20, 1904 at Stoughton. He was educated in Detroit and graduated from the Univ. of Michigan at Ann Arbor in 1926. He is engaged in the business of Advertising in Detroit. He married Le Noir Ferguson of Detroit Oct. 6, 1928.

Ruth Emma C. b. March 6, 1912 in Detroit. She married Malcolm R. Cameron of Detroit, April 14, 1932. He is a Univ. on Michigan man and is in the employ of the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit. They have the following children of the XII generation:-

Malcolm R. C. Jr. b. Dec. 24, 1933, at Detroit.

Tad C. b. Apr. 9, 1938, at Detroit.

Newman, son of Charles, (VIII) and Mary Rebecca, was born in Chelsea, Jan. 15, 1849, and was brought up there and in Boston. He was too young to enlist in the Civil War. As a young man, he kept a grocery and provision store in Dorchester, starting with his brother Frank, later with Stillman Tucker and then continued in his own name at 6 Harvard St. He sold out the business in the spring of 1901 and later held several clerical positions. On June 10, 1873, he married Sarah Ellen Clapp, the sister of his brother Albert's wife. For nearly 20 years, their home was at 79 Harvard St., Dorchester. Summers were spent at their cottage on Green Harbor beach, Marshfield. In 1896 they built a new home at 41 Salcombe St., next to his brother Albert, on land inherited from Ellen's father, David Clapp. Newman was active in the Odd Fellows as well as the Masons; and from Adelphi Lodge of Masons he received a 50 year membership medal. On two occasions, he made summer trips, with nephews and nieces, to Europe. He died Apr. 20, 1938, at 41 Salcombe St., and was buried in Woodlawn Cemetery. ^(sold 1906)

Sarah Ellen Clapp, daughter of David and Mary Elizabeth (Tucker) Clapp, was born in So. Boston, Aug. 8, 1847. After her secondary schooling in Boston, she attended the Oread Collegiate Institute in Worcester, during the school year 1870-1871. Her sisters, Mary and Lizzie had both attended the Oread previously. She was active in church work in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, particularly in the Grove Hall Mission, and belonged to the Dorchester Women's Club, the Chataqua, etc. She enjoyed entertaining relatives and friends at the cottage on Green Harbor beach, especially her nephews and nieces and friends of her children, even to overtaking her strength. She was looking forward to going into the new house on Salcombe St., and one Sunday, on going over the half built house she remarked "It is too good to be true" - and it was, for that night she contracted pneumonia and died May 13, 1896. She was buried in the Clapp tomb in the Dorchester North Cemetery and a stained glass window was dedicated to her memory in the new house.

Their children, all born in Dorchester, of the X generation, were:-

Roger Clapp C. -----	b. Apr. 1, 1874.
Julia Ingraham C. -----	b. June 4, 1877.
David Clapp C. -----	b. Sept 16, 1878.
Wentworth Newman C. -----	b. June 1, 1880.
Mary Tucker C. -----	b. May 6, 1883.

X. ROGER CLAPP CHITTENDEN.

Roger was born on the Greenwood place, on Harvard St., Dorchester. He prepared for college at the English High School, Boston, where he held the rank of 1st. Lieut. in the school cadets. He graduated from Harvard, with the A.B. degree, in 1897. He took up teaching immediately, first as a private tutor, then as sole teacher in an ungraded school in Camden, Me. which proved to be a very enjoyable winter. He has been master and head master in private and high schools in Massachusetts. He married Maude Foster of Harrison Square, Dor., Dec. 23, 1901, in the Codman Sq. Cong. Church, Dr. Little officiating. They have lived at 41 Salcombe St.; in Hanover, Mass; Vinyard Haven; Amherst and Newburyport, as he taught in all of these places. He retired in 1944, on reaching the age limit, after teaching 20 years in the Newburyport High School. He has been active in the Episcopal Church and has served, as at present, on the vestry of different parishes. He was for 7 years the leader of a boy's club in the Y.M.C.A. He has published articles on the teaching of Physics, in which he specialized. His boyhood summers were spent boating, fishing etc. at Green Harbor, with occasional visits to Camden and Boothbay Harbor, Me., and to Washington D.C. Since 1905 their summer home has been "Spruce Pillars", in Franconia, N.H. They returned to live at 41 Salcombe St, in May, 1945.

Maude Foster was born in Boston, Dec. 24, 1869, the youngest daughter of George and Dolly Eliza (Whitcher) Foster, of Dorchester. George F. was descended from Reginald Foster, who was born in Bounton England, in 1595. He came to America and settled in Ipswich, Mass., in 1638 and died in 1681. The line of descent continues through:- Jacob; Abraham; Jeremiah; Samuel; Stearns; George; Maude. George F. was born in Stoddard, N.H., June 10, 1830. He was engaged in the fur business in Boston, being burned out 3 times, including the big Boston fire. He was very public spirited and active in church work in the Codman Sq. Congregational Church, while residing on Mill St., Harrison Sq., Dorchester. He was a member of the Winslow Lewis Lodge of Masons. Their summer home was for some years in Tyngsboro, N.H. George F. died July 25, 1897 at Keene, N.H.

Dollie E., the daughter of Abiah and Lorenzo Dow Whitcher, was born March 15, 1836 in Stansted, Quebec, where her parents were temporarily. Their home was in Danville, Vt., and later in Lowell, Mass. She was a member of the Dorchester Women's Club. She married George Foster Feb. 25, 1857, and died June 2, 1911. She was buried in the family lot in Forest Hills Cemetery.

Maude, of the IX generation from Reginald Foster, received her education in the Dorchester High School. She has been active in the D.A.R., both in the OLD BLAKE House Chapter in Dorchester and in the Old Newbury Chapter, where she has held various offices, including that of Vice Regent. She belonged to the Women's Club and was for many years Sec. of the Women's Guild of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. They had no children.

JULIA INGRAHAM CHITTENDEN.

Julia was born and brought up in Dorchester and after graduating from the Roxbury High School, kept house for her father at 41 Salcombe St. She was noted for her family loyalty, which included her cousins, and devoted kindly attention to the children of her brother Wentworth. She contributed many of the items herein written, through examination of early records. She was active in the Blake House Chapter of the D.A.R. and at her death, Aug. 13, 1916, her name was memorialized in the D.A.R. hall in Washington D.C. by a brass chair plate. She was buried in the Clapp tomb of the Dorchester North cemetery. She married Alexander L. Stockwell June 4, 1907 and lived on Kenwood St. Dor. No children.

David was born Sept. 16, 1878, at 79 Harvard St., Dorchester. He graduated from the Boston English High School in 1898 and from the Bussey Institution of Harvard University in 1902 with the degree of B.A.S. XI.

DAVID CHITTENDEN GRISWOLD. 1907 - 1937.

IX

David was born May 3, 1907. He lived in various parts of the United States until his untimely death, in Duxbury, in 1937. He graduated from the Middleboro High School, (Mass) and took a year's study at Vermont Academy. The following year he entered the Syracuse School of Forestry, and after two years work there, he went to the State of Washington for work in the Forest Experiment Station and attended Washington State College for one year. There he was a member of the S.A.E. Fraternity. Later he was Forest Ranger and Fire Warden in Western Mass. It was during a visit to Duxbury that he met his death by accident, while hunting, Oct. 31, 1937. Everywhere, in his personal relations, he had maintained an unusual degree of friendliness as one of the qualities of a young man of exceptional promise. He was buried in Mayflower Cemetery, Duxbury.

XI.

HENRY MILLIKEN GRISWOLD.

Henry was born Oct. 4, 1908. He did some travelling through the farming regions of the Northwest. He is engaged in poultry raising in Duxbury, Mass., where he has a large and flourishing chicken farm. He married Mildred Bahe of So. Easton, Mass., Oct. 5, 1930. Henry, with his brother Roger, served for 2½ years, until late 1944, in the Temporary Reserve of the Coast Guard; - boat patrol in Plymouth Harbor; beach patrol and tower watch at Gurnet Light Station.

Children of the XII generation, all born while living in Duxbury:-

Betty Ann G. ----- b. Sept. 6, 1931.
 Judith Mary G. ----- b. Aug. 29, 1935.
 Priscilla Ellen G. ----- b. Mar. 15, 1940.
 Jennifer Jane G. ----- b. Apr. 21, 1943.
 Susan G. ----- b. Dec. 14, 1944.

Mildred, the daughter of Henry J. and Annie Bahe, b. Oct. 6, 1909. She is descended on her mother's side from the prosperous Wallace Clan of Scotland. Her great-grandmother was left a widow with several small children when she came to America by sailing vessel and settled in Vermont. A descendent married a Woodward and moved to Massachusetts and later married a Bahe. The Bahes were of German ancestry, arriving in America in protest to the autocratic conditions in Germany, during the middle of the last century. The Bahe of her direct descent was a doctor who married an English woman. Her own family became residents of So. Easton, Mass.

The large poultry farm in the southern part of Duxbury, is the site of regular annual Decoration Day gatherings during recent years, for relatives of the Chittenden, Clapp and Tucker families.

Roger was born in Plymouth, Sept 21, 1910. He attended Middleboro High School and took a year at Vermont Academy. He has visited the Pacific Coast with his mother and in 1933 went to see his father in the mining camps of Nevada and Arizona. He married Helen MacAloney, of Somerville, Sept. 19, 1938, in the Unitarian Rectory, Middleboro. Their home is in Duxbury, where he is in the business of poultry raising, similar to that of his brother, Henry. He served in the Coast Guard with Henry, as described above.

Children of the XII generation:-

David Chittenden Griswold 2nd. --- b. Jan. 31, 1941.

Bruce Charles G. ----- b. Mar. 2, 1945.

Helen was born Mar. 4, 1917. Her father was Charles S. McAloney, whose Scotch ancestors migrated from No. Ireland to Canada as pioneer farmers. Her paternal great-grandfather was given a grant of land in Canada for having fought in the Battle of Waterloo. Her mother was Jessie MacRhee, American, from Dundee, Scotland.

LEON STACY GRISWOLD.

Leon was born July 20, 1865 in Boston, the son of Henry Alonzo G. and Lucy Ann Milliken. Later they lived on Boston St. Dorchester, near Edward Everett Sq. Leon graduated from the Boston Latin School and Harvard; - A.B. 1889. After graduation he was connected with the Arkansas Geological Survey. From 1891 - 6 he was instructor and Asst. Prof. of Geology at Harvard, in association with such distinguished and inspirational leaders as Nathaniel S. Shaler, W.M. Davis etc. He worked with Alexander Agassiz studying the geology of So. Florida, the Everglades and the Florida Keys. From 1900 to 1910 he was Asst. Prof. and Prof. of Mining Geology in the University of Missouri, at Rolla. In 1910 he moved to Plymouth, Mass. and spent the rest of his life as private geologist and Prospector. He was a consulting geologist in the Oklahoma oil fields, where, in connection with the Thurman Oil Co. and others, he was instrumental in bringing many new and valuable oil wells into action. His work took him to many spots on the Atlantic coast as well as all over the western half of the U.S. and Canada, some of it in connection with the U.S. Geol. Survey. He published various articles on his studies. Leon died in Yuma, Arizona, Aug. 10, 1940 and was buried there.

Leon's father, Henry A. Griswold, in Warehouse Point, Conn., the son of John Griswold. Early records were destroyed when the Town House of Windsor, Conn. was burned, but Leon believes he was descended from the Griswolds who settled in Weathersfield, Conn. and were farmers and traders in that section. The Henry A. G. family later moved to No. Charlston, N.H. Henry was Drill Sergeant of the old Boston Dragoons before Civil War times and during the war was Drill Master at Fort Warren, in Boston Harbor.

Leon's mother was Lucy Ann Milliken of Scarborough, Me., where there are many records of the Milliken family in the Scarborough Cemetery and several of that name still live in the vicinity. Lucy's mother was a Parker from Mass. In the direct Milliken line of ancestry, there was a lieut. of colonial troops who served at the siege of Louisburg. One of her brothers and a cousin served in the Maine State Legislature.

IX. ELLA LOUISE CHITTENDEN, 1851 - 1938.

Ella was born in the Washington Ave. home of her father, Charles, in Chelsea. She attended the Boston Schools, including the Normal High School and became a teacher in the Boston School System. During the Civil war, she was old enough to remember patriotic exercises, soldier's parades and her cousin, John Augustus Bowdler, - "Lt. Gus" as he was called, on his visits on Federal St. She had three brothers in the service.

On the death of her older sister, Charlotte, Ella became the mainstay of her mother; and on the death of her younger sister, Minetta, in 1885, Ella assumed much of the bringing up of her niece, Florence Mary Homer. She lived for many years in Brighton, while teaching there. Through her cousin, Mrs. Caroline D. Withington, Ella early became interested in the Swedenborgian Church Society of Boston and was a member of the Church of the New Jerusalem on Bowdoin St., until her death. She was also devoted to her other nephews and nieces, at whose gatherings she was always welcome. In later life, after retirement, she made her home for a time with her brother Newman at 41 Salcombe St., and with her niece, Florence, (Mrs. John A. Hayward) in Providence, R.I. There she died Mar. 24, 1938 and after an inspiring service in the Church of the New Jerusalem, her ashes were buried in the Chittenden lot in Woodlawn Cemetery.

IX. MINETTA INGRAHAM CHITTENDEN. 1855 - 1885.

Minetta was born in Chelsea, Mar. 27, 1855. The family moved to Federal St. the following year and she was educated in Boston. She married Franklin Pierce Homer Dec. 25, 1876. The Homer family lived in Boston, where their only child, Florence Mary Homer was born July 26, 1878.

Franklin P. Homer was a cousin of Mrs. John Clapp (Julia Crane) of So. Boston, with whom Minetta's brothers, Albert and Newman, were connected by marriage. He was born Aug. 17, 1852 and was in the wholesale grocery business, in the firm of Proctor and Homer, on Essex St. Boston. He was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He died Aug. 17, 1904.

Florence was born in Boston, July 26, 1878. She attended private schools in Boston and received the A.B. degree at Smith College in Northampton, Mass. in 1901. She taught for a while in the Dorchester High School. After her marriage she took up post graduate work in Botany at Brown University, in Providence, receiving her A.M. degree in 1928.

Florence married Dr. John Albert Hayward June 19, 1912. They had one child who died in infancy.

John Albert Hayward was born Sept. 13, 1878. He graduated from Harvard with the class of 1904 and obtained his M.D. degree in 1906. He practiced medicine in Camden, Portland and Biddeford, Maine and specialized, later, in Anesthesia. He is, at present, on the staff of the Homeopathic Hospital in Providence, R.I. as Anesthetist. He is a member of various medical societies and has made valuable contributions concerning the apparatus used in anesthesia.

Dr. Hayward entered World War I in July 1918 as 1st. Lieut., base Hospital 44, Medical Corps of the A.E.F., U.S. Army. He was commissioned Captain in April 1919, having served at the front in France, as physician and surgeon.

I. Thomas Chittenden.

Thomas' younger son, Henry (II), who was born in England in 1629 and died in Scituate in 1713, was one of the constables of the Town of Scituate, after taking oath to serve the King. With his brother, he inherited from Thomas some 50 acres of land in Scituate, "near the Valley Swamp between Hingham and Scituate," as recorded in the Plymouth County Deeds. His children were;- Joseph, b. 1656/7; Susana, b. 1663/4; Elizabeth, b. 1673; and Ruth. Through Joseph he had the following grandchildren;- Mary, b. 1684; Ruth b. 1689; Nathaniel, b. 1694 and Alatheia, b. 1697, also one grandchild, Ruth, through his daughter, Ruth Stetson. In the records of Plymouth Co. Deeds, Henry's ownership was indicated as land bordering on the "Saw Mill Pond" in Scituate and certain Cedar swamp lands called "Black Pond Swamp" and 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land in Cohasset;- the latter willed to his son, Joseph. Certain grandchildren also received various tracts on his death in 1713.

II. Isaac Chittenden.

Sarah, one of the twins, married Capt. Anthony Collamore in 1666 and had a son Peter (IV). Stephen mar. Mehitable Buck in 1679. Their children (IV) were Rebecca, 1680; Thomas, 1683; Mehitable, 1686; Sarah, 1688; Jael, 1691 and Martha, 1694. Of these it is recorded that Thomas married Elizabeth Woodworth in 1707 and had children, (V)- Elizabeth, 1708; Mehitable, 1710; Sarah, 1712; Thomas, 1718 and Stephen, 1722. Thomas had a son, Thomas, in 1748.

IV. Israel Chittenden Jr.

Israel's son, Israel, m. Deborah Vinal in 1741, some of whose descendants are recorded in the X generation. His son, Nathaniel, m. Desire ----, whose children (VI) were Nathaniel, 1751; Isaac, 1753, Luther and Desire. The last named Nathaniel was in the Militia of Scituate and in Capt. John Clapp's Co., of Col. John Bailey's regiment, which marched to Lexington at the alarm of Apr. 19, 1775 and later served as 2nd. Lieut. in John Thomas' regt. in the war of the Revolution. He married Ruth Foster and had eight children, in Scituate, between 1776 and 1794.

V. Capt. Isaac Chittenden.

With the Capt. Isaac C. family now established in Malden, (in the portion which later became Everett and adjoined Chelsea), we find various records of land transactions concerning him and his wife Persis, as well as of his sons Calvin and Isaac. From Thomas Burdett, Isaac purchased over 5 acres of meadows in Malden, July 25, 1765 and pasture land, called "the stoney pasture", from Ebenezer Pratt of Malden, June 8, 1770. Some salt marsh land in Chelsea, about 49 acres, was sold for 48 pounds to Dr. Humphrey Devereux of Marblehead by Isaac and Persis. This was part of some marsh lands originally purchased from Peter Edes in 1765. The sale was made May 8, 1773, and was described as bordering on Chelsea Bridge Creek and Ware River. This deed names Isaac as yeoman of Malden; while in his 1765 purchase deed, Isaac was named as "late of Boston, mow of Malden, mariner".

There are records concerning the properties of Capt. Isaac, subsequent to his death. His son Calvin mortgaged some of the Malden lands June 8, 1789, to a Mary Chittenden of Scituate, "formerly wife of Isaac C. of Malden"; which mortgage was discharged Dec. 25, 1794. His son Isaac Jr. conveyed a small piece of orchard land, Dec. 29, 1793, to his nephew, Ebenezer Chittenden, of Malden; also a 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ acre tract in Malden to Calvin, Mar. 26, 1796; - all parts of the estate of the late Capt. Isaac C. That he had a second wife, Mary, is possible, as an Isaac C. of Malden is recorded as marrying a Mary Turner of Scituate, at Scituate, in 1780. The Boston records of his son Isaac's birth in 1761, name Persis as his mother.

Calvin had numerous cousins and other relatives still living to the south of Boston. Among them the Plymouth Co. Records frequently name an Isaac, of about that time, as well as Chittendens with such given names as Israel, Deborah, Thomas, Stephen, Nathaniel, Luther, Desire etc. and relatives by marriage such as Vinal, Collamore etc; residents of Scituate, Cohasset, Hanover etc.

Some Chittendens were recorded in Lynn about this time, where a Thomas C. married Love Ramsdel Dec. 8, 1774, with children; - Sarah, bapt. Aug. 10, 1777, and Joseph, bapt. May 3, 1779. Thomas died Aug. 19, 1814 in Marblehead; and Love, June 11, 1841 (aged 80), in marblehead.

In Malden, the marriage of Anna C. to David Sargent Jr., both of that town, was recorded Dec. 17, 1777. Also, in Lexington, a Charlotte C., at the age of 15, died Aug. 12, 1819. a Lucy C. Married John Blair Jr. Jan. 17, 1805, in Marblehead.

Calvin's brother, Isaac, married, Nov. 11, 1787, Phebe Green of Malden. He was listed in the 1790 census as head of a family in Malden. His three children died during childhood.

VI. Calvin Chittenden.

Facts about Calvin's children, Ebenezer's brothers & sisters.

VII. SARAH, unmarried, d. July 22, 1848, aged 75.

VII. BENJAMIN, unmarried, lived in Chelsea as late as 1845 and died Nov. 14, 1848. (Malden records).

VII. NATHANIEL was an able farmer as were his brothers. Calvin boasted that none could compare with his son Nat in ability to cut a broad swath with his scythe. This son was noted for his good looks and married the decidedly homely but lively and popular Ann Pratt of Chelsea. There are records, however, that Nathaniel C. of Chelsea married Ann Adams of Medford, Nov. 14, 1798. His daughter, who married Samuel Cummings of Roxbury Oct. 13, 1842, was noted for her beauty. In Nathaniel's time, the town of Malden covered much of what later became Everett, including the area of Woodlawn Cemetery. In fact, a part of some of the lands farmed by Nathaniel, or others of Calvin's family, became a portion of this cemetery where some of the later Chittendens are buried. Nathaniel held "208 acres of upland and marsh with 3 barns, a shed, a corn barn and a very old 2 story house with 22 windows" in 1791. He died Dec. 23, 1821, aged 46 and was buried in Malden.

VII. NANCY married Jonathan Cummings June 16, 1799 and had 7 children, most of whom did not marry. Her son Hiram, however, married and had a son Charles and a daughter Clarissa, who married a Penniman. Nancy's daughter Ann married a Demoyria.

VII. SAMUEL was doubtless the most enterprising of Calvin's sons. Chiefly through real estate in this section, north of Boston, he had acquired a fair degree of prosperity when he died at the age of 66. Chelsea records show that Samuel C. of Malden married 17 year old Sally Flagg Newman of Chelsea, Oct. 21, 1804. Mentioned as a "housewright" in several land transactions, Samuel took an active part in the planning and building of the Chelsea - Charlestown bridge. He was named Administrator of his father Calvin's estate and sold to Nehemiah Oakes of Malden,

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry, no matter how small, should be carefully documented to ensure the integrity of the financial data. This includes recording dates, amounts, and the nature of the transactions. The second part of the document outlines the procedures for reconciling the accounts. It states that the accounts should be reconciled at the end of each month to identify any discrepancies. If a discrepancy is found, it should be investigated immediately to determine the cause and correct the error. The third part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining proper documentation for all transactions. It states that all receipts, invoices, and other supporting documents should be kept in a secure and organized manner for a period of at least five years. This is necessary to provide evidence in the event of an audit or legal dispute. The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all assets and liabilities. It states that the value of all assets and liabilities should be determined at the end of each year and recorded in the financial statements. This is necessary to provide a true and accurate picture of the financial position of the organization. The fifth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all income and expenses. It states that all income and expenses should be recorded in the financial statements and supported by appropriate documentation. This is necessary to ensure the accuracy of the financial data and to provide evidence in the event of an audit or legal dispute.

The sixth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all capital transactions. It states that all capital transactions, including the issuance of shares and the payment of dividends, should be recorded in the financial statements and supported by appropriate documentation. This is necessary to ensure the accuracy of the financial data and to provide evidence in the event of an audit or legal dispute. The seventh part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all debt transactions. It states that all debt transactions, including the borrowing of money and the payment of interest, should be recorded in the financial statements and supported by appropriate documentation. This is necessary to ensure the accuracy of the financial data and to provide evidence in the event of an audit or legal dispute. The eighth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all other transactions. It states that all other transactions, including the purchase of goods and services, should be recorded in the financial statements and supported by appropriate documentation. This is necessary to ensure the accuracy of the financial data and to provide evidence in the event of an audit or legal dispute.

The ninth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all other transactions. It states that all other transactions, including the purchase of goods and services, should be recorded in the financial statements and supported by appropriate documentation. This is necessary to ensure the accuracy of the financial data and to provide evidence in the event of an audit or legal dispute. The tenth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all other transactions. It states that all other transactions, including the purchase of goods and services, should be recorded in the financial statements and supported by appropriate documentation. This is necessary to ensure the accuracy of the financial data and to provide evidence in the event of an audit or legal dispute.

Jan. 16, 1811, the homestead which was described as 1½ miles north of Malden Bridge near the Newburyport Turnpike. The house was still standing in 1893 on Elm St. near what is now Woodlawn Cemetery in Everett. This is believed to be part of the property purchased in 1762 by Calvin's father, Isaac. This was soon deeded back to Samuel and with other property, sold in 1813 to a William Hurd of Charlestown. In 1813 Samuel was also made Administrator (Boston Probate Records) of the estate of his brother Charles C., then of Charleston, So. Carolina, but formerly of Boston. Samuel had numerous transactions in real estate between 1808 and 1841:- mostly lands fronting on, or near the Salem Turnpike (Broadway) in Chelsea; some near the Chelsea bridge; along Broadway near Third St. and near Beacon St.; and one at "Chelsea Beach" near Suffolk St. The Ferry section of Chelsea contained few residences at that time. In 1824 Samuel's home was on the corner of Central Avenue and the present Hawthorne St., (about the location of the Shurtleff School), as the highway as then laid out (old County Road) made its turn "nearly opposite Samuel C's house". Although there was scarcely a building, except a tavern or two, in the section near the Ferry Landing, John Lowe built a store on the corner of the present Broadway and Everett Ave. in 1832, which served as the only public meeting place. It is recorded that "merry evening gatherings" of the the townsmen, including Samuel and Ben Chittenden, were held in this store. The only church at that time was in the older settled part of Chelsea (now Revere) and subscribers for the purchase of the church bell in 1832, included both Samuel and Ben C. As the Salem Turnpike became Broadway and rapidly developed as a residential street, Samuel doubtless had a home there. Certainly, his widow lived on Broadway for many years.

Samuel died in Chelsea July 8, 1845, without issue. Sally Flagg C., his widow, was Executrix of his will and was affectionately known as "Aunt Chittenden" by her husband's nephews and Nieces;- especially by the family of Charles C. who lived not far away. She died in Chelsea Sept. 2, 1880 and was buried in Garden Cemetery, as was her husband, with a stone marking her grave. Her Executors were Charles C. and Ralph Beatley, to whom she made generous bequests, as well as to her nephew Samuel and nieces Martha Chittenden, Ann Demoyria, Eliza Cummings, Clarissa Penniman, and to certain Baptist Societies.

VII. MARY, called Polly, married Ebenezer Lane in Boston, Dec. 9, 1809. She had 3 children. Of these Ann and Charles were unmarried; the latter a seafaring man, while Maria married an Eben Baker. After the death of her husband, Polly married a Simms.

VII. PERSIS and Nehemiah Oakes, both of Malden, were married July 12, 1810 and had 5 children. Of these, Nancy Oakes married a Cummings. Their son Arthur died and the other son, Walter, went to Chicago. Nancy's second husband was a Hagar and Mrs. Hagar was still living in Boston as late as 1894. G. Herbert C. got much of the above information from her.

VII. CHARLES doubtless lived for a while in Boston, then moved to Charlston So. Carolina, where he apparently died young.

Data regarding Ebenezer's children.

VIII. MARTHA INGRAHAM CHITTENDEN. 1803 - 1874.

Martha lived much of her life in Chelsea and was unmarried. She died in Chelsea Jan. 25, 1874 and was buried in Woodlawn Cemetery. Her early life was taken up by the care of her younger brothers and sisters and was especially helpful through her training as a practical nurse, - the occupation which she followed during the latter part of her life. She was much beloved by those of her own and of the following generation. Her last recorded home was at 75 Bellingham St., Chelsea.

VIII. PERSIS CHARLOTTE CHITTENDEN. 1805 - 1819.

Charlotte died at the early age of 13 years.

VIII. SAMUEL CHITTENDEN. 1809 - ?.

Samuel was born in Malden Oct. II, 1809. He lived much of his life in Connecticut (Willimantic) He married Sarah B. Davis of Mansfield Conn. and they had 3 children:-

Emily Ann -----b. Sept. 9, 1835.

John Ebenezer -----b. 1838.

Sarah Ophelia -----b. Mar. 30, 1841.

Another child, Melinda, was mentioned in family letters of 1855, but no records have been found. As the silk industry was thriving in Conn. at that time, - the mulberry tree blight occurred only in the late 1840's - Samuel was very likely employed in that industry. Later the family moved to Stafford Conn. and at one time they were living in Chicopee Falls, Mass., where he was employed as a gunsmith. The family, especially during Civil War days, visited his brother Charles in Boston.

Of his children, Emily was the best known by our immediate family. About 1855 she married Isaac Miller. Ten years later she was living in or near Boston and intimate with her cousin Martha Cotton etc. Later she studied medicine and became a physician. In 1892 she went to Washington Territory and became a medical missionary among the Indians at Fort Simcoe. The last years of her life were spent at Shutesbury, Mass., whose Town records state that she died Dec. 22, 1917. In the same town, her sister Ophelia (Mrs. John T. Moulthrop) also lived, and died Oct. 19, 1917. She had a daughter Charlotte.

VIII. CAROLINE CHITTENDEN, 1807 - 1887.

Caroline married, at 19, John Cotton Jr., June 22, 1826. He was born in Boston about 1800 and was a printer and publisher. It was in the printing office of the Senior John Cotton, on the corner of Franklin and Washington Sts. in Boston, that David Clapp started his apprenticeship, at 16, in 1822. He later became a partner and finally sole owner of the business. Caroline's marriage into the Cotton family started the early contact between the Chittenden and Clapp families which resulted in later marriages. The early home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cotton Jr. was at 37 Purchase St., Boston.

Caroline C.C. soon became a widow. She later married Joshua Crane in Boston, Nov. 26, 1845; and on the death of the latter, she married Capt. Samuel Cook, Nov. 6, 1851, and lived at 39 G St., So. Boston. Capt. Cook was made Harbor Master of Boston at about that time. Caroline's brother Charles, (VIII), soon moved to the Federal St. gas office and David Clapp's family was living near by, at 104 F St. The Clapps and the Cooks attended the same church, St. Matthews, where Caroline took her young nephew, Lt. A.A. Chittenden, to services in 1864. The marriages of two of her Chittenden nephews into the Clapp family resulted later. Her So. Boston home was well remembered by the children and grandchildren of her brother Charles. She died in 1887, surviving Capt. Cook. (see life of Capt. Cook, Page 6).

Her children, of the IX generation were:-

- IX. Martha Ingraham Cotton --- 1829 - 1893.
John Cotton
Caroline Davies Cotton --- 1832 - 1913.

IX. MARTHA INGRAHAM COTTON, 1829 - 1893.

Martha studied at the Newton Normal School in 1844 and taught in various schools around Boston. She spent the latter part of her life with her mother and stepfather; - the Cooks. Her aunt, Patty C. was very fond of Martha and referred to her as a bright capable teacher. Martha, her cousin Emily and Mary S. Clapp were much interested in studying botany together. She died Apr. 10, 1893, aged 64 years.

IX. JOHN COTTON.

Little is known of John Cotton's life. He went West in the California Gold Rush and was living in Sacramento, Cal. in 1864.

IX. CAROLINE DAVIES COTTON. 1832 - 1913.

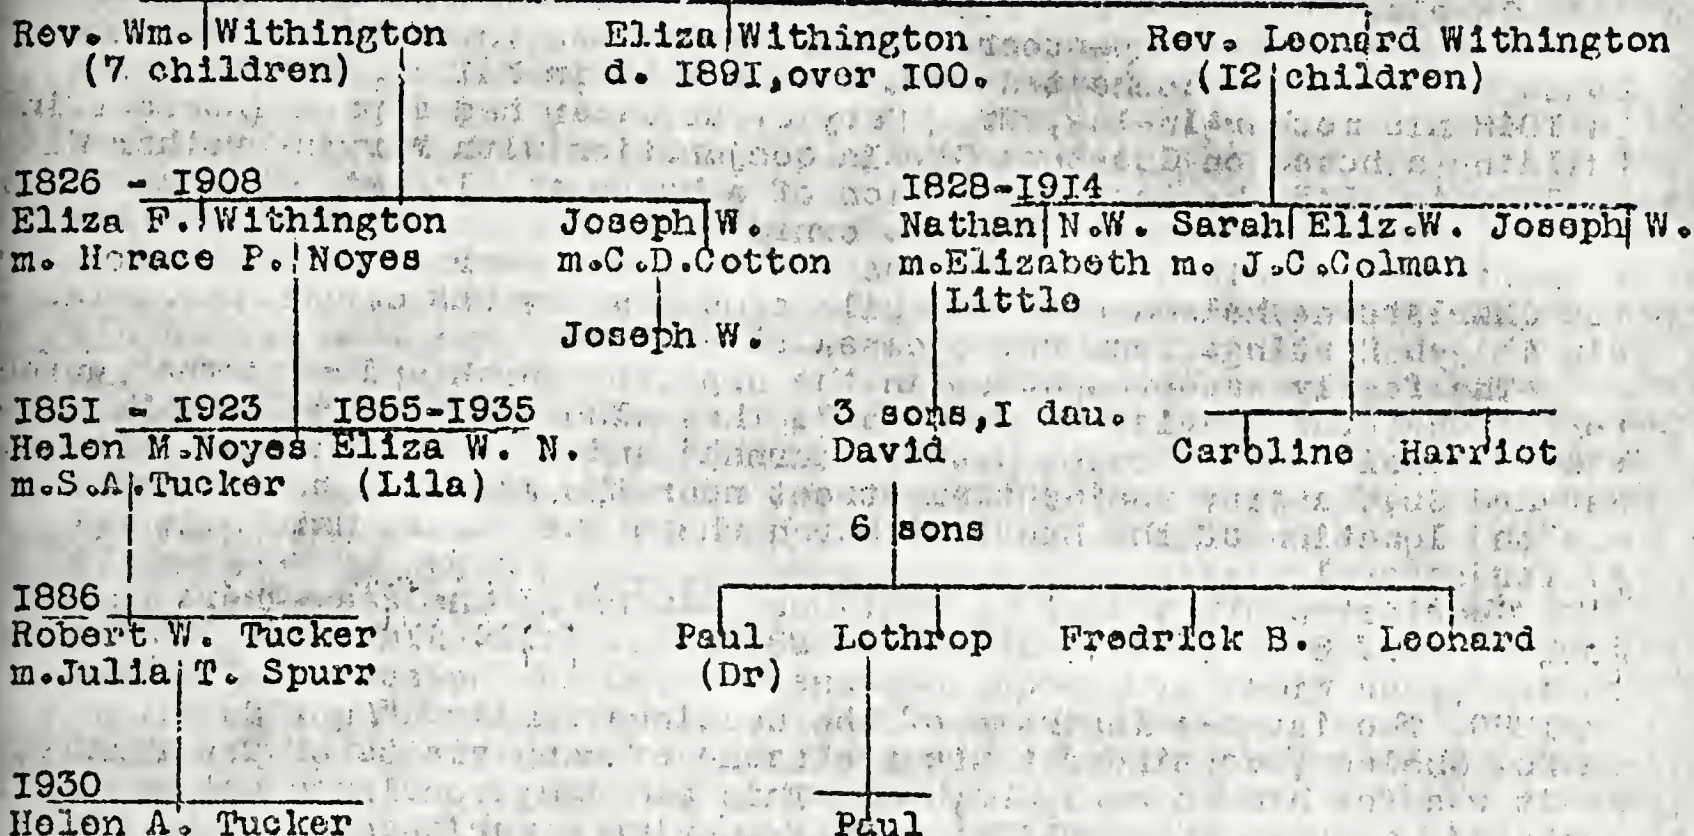

Caroline married Joseph Withington of Dorchester, Oct. 15, 1856. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. Wm. Withington. His sister was Mrs. Eliza Withington Noyes of Newbury and Dorchester. Joseph went to California, where he died and was buried somewhere in Tuolumne County. They had one child, Joseph Jr. who died in his early twenty's. The Colmans, of Newburyport, speak of him as having been a reporter on one of the Boston newspapers. During the Civil War, Caroline lived with her mother and Capt. Cook. As an older cousin, C.D.W. maintained intimate, helpful and influential relations with the children and grandchildren of her brother Charles. The latter remember her well when living on Walnut St. in Brookline, Mass. She died in Boston March 24, 1913. (see Withington chart Page 7).

"Born in Salem Mass., March 15, 1784, Samuel Cook started his career on the sea when 14 years old and passed honorably all the grades of his arduous profession from cabin boy to captain. During the War of 1812 he was captured by the British and confined in Dartmoor prison. Among his companions were the late Mr. G.W. Green, well known for many years as a fish merchant on Long Wharf; Mr. Morris, who died last year and who was the oldest boatswain in the U.S. Naval service; and Father Taylor, the veteran salt water saint. In 1814 Capt. Cook commanded the ship Union, of 650 tons, with a crew of 40 all told, engaged in the China trade. Among those under him were the late Josiah P. Creesy, who made two of the shortest passages on record, in the Flying Cloud, between New York and San Francisco; Capt. Jack Eldridge, the famous New York and Liverpool packet shipmaster; and the late Israel Whitney, merchant and ship owner. These all served as boys before the mast. Capt. John Bertram, for many years one of the most eminent and successful merchants of New England and still engaged in trade in Salem, also sailed under him.

On one of his voyages in the Pacific, while on shore with a boat's crew, the natives surprised those on board his ship and captured her. As he approached, he perceived her decks swarming with natives and divining that all was not right, the boat, by his direction, was pulled under the stern and he and his crew shinned up the rudder rods, entered through the cabin windows and found the mate and some of the men below. Promptly arming them, he burst the companion open and with cutlass in hand and followed by his crew, drove the natives pell mell overboard and regained possession of his ship. For this gallant service he was highly complimented by his owners and underwriters. He sailed in the service of the late Wm. Gray; of the late Nathaniel Goddard and for Goodhue & CO. of New York, and during his 40 years of sea life, thirty of which he was captain, never was in a vessel which touched bottom through a blunder in navigation. His life afloat was uniformly successful. He was the oldest member of the Boston Marine Society.

When he left the sea he purchased a small island off the coast of Maine, where he resided several years, but eventually sold it and came to Boston. Still enjoying vigorous health, he was elected Harbor Master of Boston and served ten years in that capacity. Since then he has lived in retirement, but always took an active interest in all the various changes and improvements in shipping. He died at his residence in So. Boston, May 17, 1876."

At the age of 67 years, Capt. Cook married, as his third wife, Caroline Chittenden (Cotton) Crane and they made their home at 39 G St. So. Boston, where the couple enjoyed a comfortable old age. It was undoubtedly at their home that the sons and daughters of the Chittenden and Clapp families became better acquainted, resulting in two later marriages. Of the relics of his seafaring life, a Captain's grog chest and an oval, gilt framed mirror from his So. Boston home came into the possession of the A.A. Chittenden family, through his step-daughter, Caroline D. (Cotton) Withington.

Rev. William Withington, of Dorchester, was an Episcopal minister with a parish in Ashfield Mass., where his only child by his first wife, Eliza Frothingham Withington, was born in 1826. (grandmother of Robert W. Tucker). By his second wife he had 6 children:- Gen. Wm. Herbert W. of Jackson, Mich.; Mary, Gertrude and Lucy of Washington, D.C. (Lucy m. Mr. Thompson and was the mother of Edith Thompson); Carry and Joseph. The latter married Caroline Davies Cotton. Their son, Joseph, according to the Colmans, was a reporter on a Boston newspaper and was present at the wedding of Helen M. Noyes and Stillman A. Tucker. He died in his early twenties.

Eliza Withington, sister of the Rev. William, died in 1891, soon after passing her 100th birthday, at the Noyes-Tucker home in Dorchester. She retained her faculties to the end and was very bright and entertaining.

Rev. Leonard Withington was the minister of the old Cong. church, Newbury, for nearly 50 years. He had 12 children. Among them were:- NATHAN NOYES ^{W. LITTLE}, an editor of the Newburyport Herald, about the turn of the century. Their children were;- David L.;-Arthur;-Lothrop and Ann. David and Arthur were lawyers in Newburyport and Honolulu. Lothrop, a noted genealogist of London and Paris, was lost on the Lusitania.

DAVID had 6 sons among whom were:- Paul, a Harvard graduate and physician;- Leonard, an editor of the Newburyport Herald about 1915;- Lothrop, Boston lawyer, Harvard crew and Capt. of the 1910 foot ball team;- His son, Paul, was Capt. of the Gov. Dummer hockey team, 1944-5. Many of the Withingtons attended Gov. Dummer Academy, So. Byfield, Mass.

SARAH Elizabeth W., sister of Nathan, m. James Chute Colman, who ran a lumber wharf in Newburyport, was the mother of the Misses Caroline and Harriot Colman, now living at 14 Harris St., Newburyport Mass.

-Another son of the Rev. Leonard W. was Joseph. He was a Captain in the Civil War and lived in Mattoon, Ill.

Charles continued his housebuilding in Chelsea, during the 1840's and 1850's. He was in partnership with Azel Ames in building a Pratt house in 1840, and connected with a John Howe in building and renting. In 1842 his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary S. Bowdlear had a part interest in building a house on Chestnut St. In conjunction with Mary's brother Wm. Sealey, in 1845, he took possession of a house and lot at 3 Murray Place, Boston, (off Prince St.) which he owned for 20 years. For his building operations in Chelsea, much of the material was carried from Boston over the Charlestown-Chelsea bridge, while some masonry was carted by his cousin Abijah Hastings from No. Chelsea (Revere).

The family was brought up in the Baptist Church and read the church periodical, the "Christian Watchman". They also took the "Boston Mercantile Journal", the "Boston Weekly Journal" and the "New England Farmer". Harvard St., a city residential street near the Federal St. gas houses, was the location of the Baptist church where the family maintained pew #7 for several years.

Charles' sister, Martha, continued living in Chelsea, where his mother, Mrs. Ebenezer C., died Mar. 28, 1858. Sally Flagg C., "Aunt Chittenden", the widow of his uncle Samuel, lived in Chelsea until she died in 1880. The interesting home of the Hastings family, "Aunt Hastings", in No. Chelsea, continued to be the scene of many visits of the family, as it was for him in early boyhood. This old lady continued active until she died, aged 96, Jan. 16, 1866; - having experienced something of three American wars during her lifetime.

Charles had three sons who served in the Civil War. Albert, at 19 joined the Independent Corps of Cadets; Franklin, still 16, with parental permission, joined Battery A of the Boston Light Artillery and was in active service near Washington; Henry served in Naval operations in the South. Albert and the Cadet Regiment was encamped for 2 months of training in the fall of 1862, at Readville, about 10 miles from Boston. Here relatives visited him. The Cadets became the 45th Mass. Reg. Nov. 5 they came by train to Boston and after manouvres on the Common, went aboard the steamship "Mississippi". A heavy snow and rain storm kept them in the harbor for a few days and worried his family. They finally landed in No. Carolina, with headquarters at New Berne and soon saw active duty. Albert reenlisted in 1864 as a 2nd Lt. in the 6th Mass. Reg., stationed at Fort Delaware. David Clapp was also in the war, as was a nephew of Mrs Charles C., - John Augustus Bowdlear "Lt. Gus". In the great procession at the end of the war, in Boston, June 1, 1865, Franklin marched with his Battery and Albert with the Cadet Reg. The younger children of the family, viewed the parade from the office of David Clapp on Washington St.

Chelsea started as Winnisimmet Village, which was settled by Samuel Maverick in 1624. It consisted of only a few buildings, mostly overnight taverns, at the landing place for row-boats and sail-boatferries from Charlestown. Trails and rough roads led off to the north. The "Old Country Road", authorized by the General Court in 1641, started at Winnisimmet Village, passed over the present Broadway and Washington Ave. through Prattville, along the east side of the present Woodlawn Cemetery, through Saugus, to Lynn and Salem. Branching off from this road, near the present junction of Washington Ave. and the Revere Beach Parkway, the County Road turned west into Medford and Boston, a distance of 20 miles. It made a turn "nearly opposite Samuel Chittenden's house".

Calvin (VI) presumably settled to the west of Prattville, as part of his estate and part of Prattville were included in Woodlawn Cemetery.

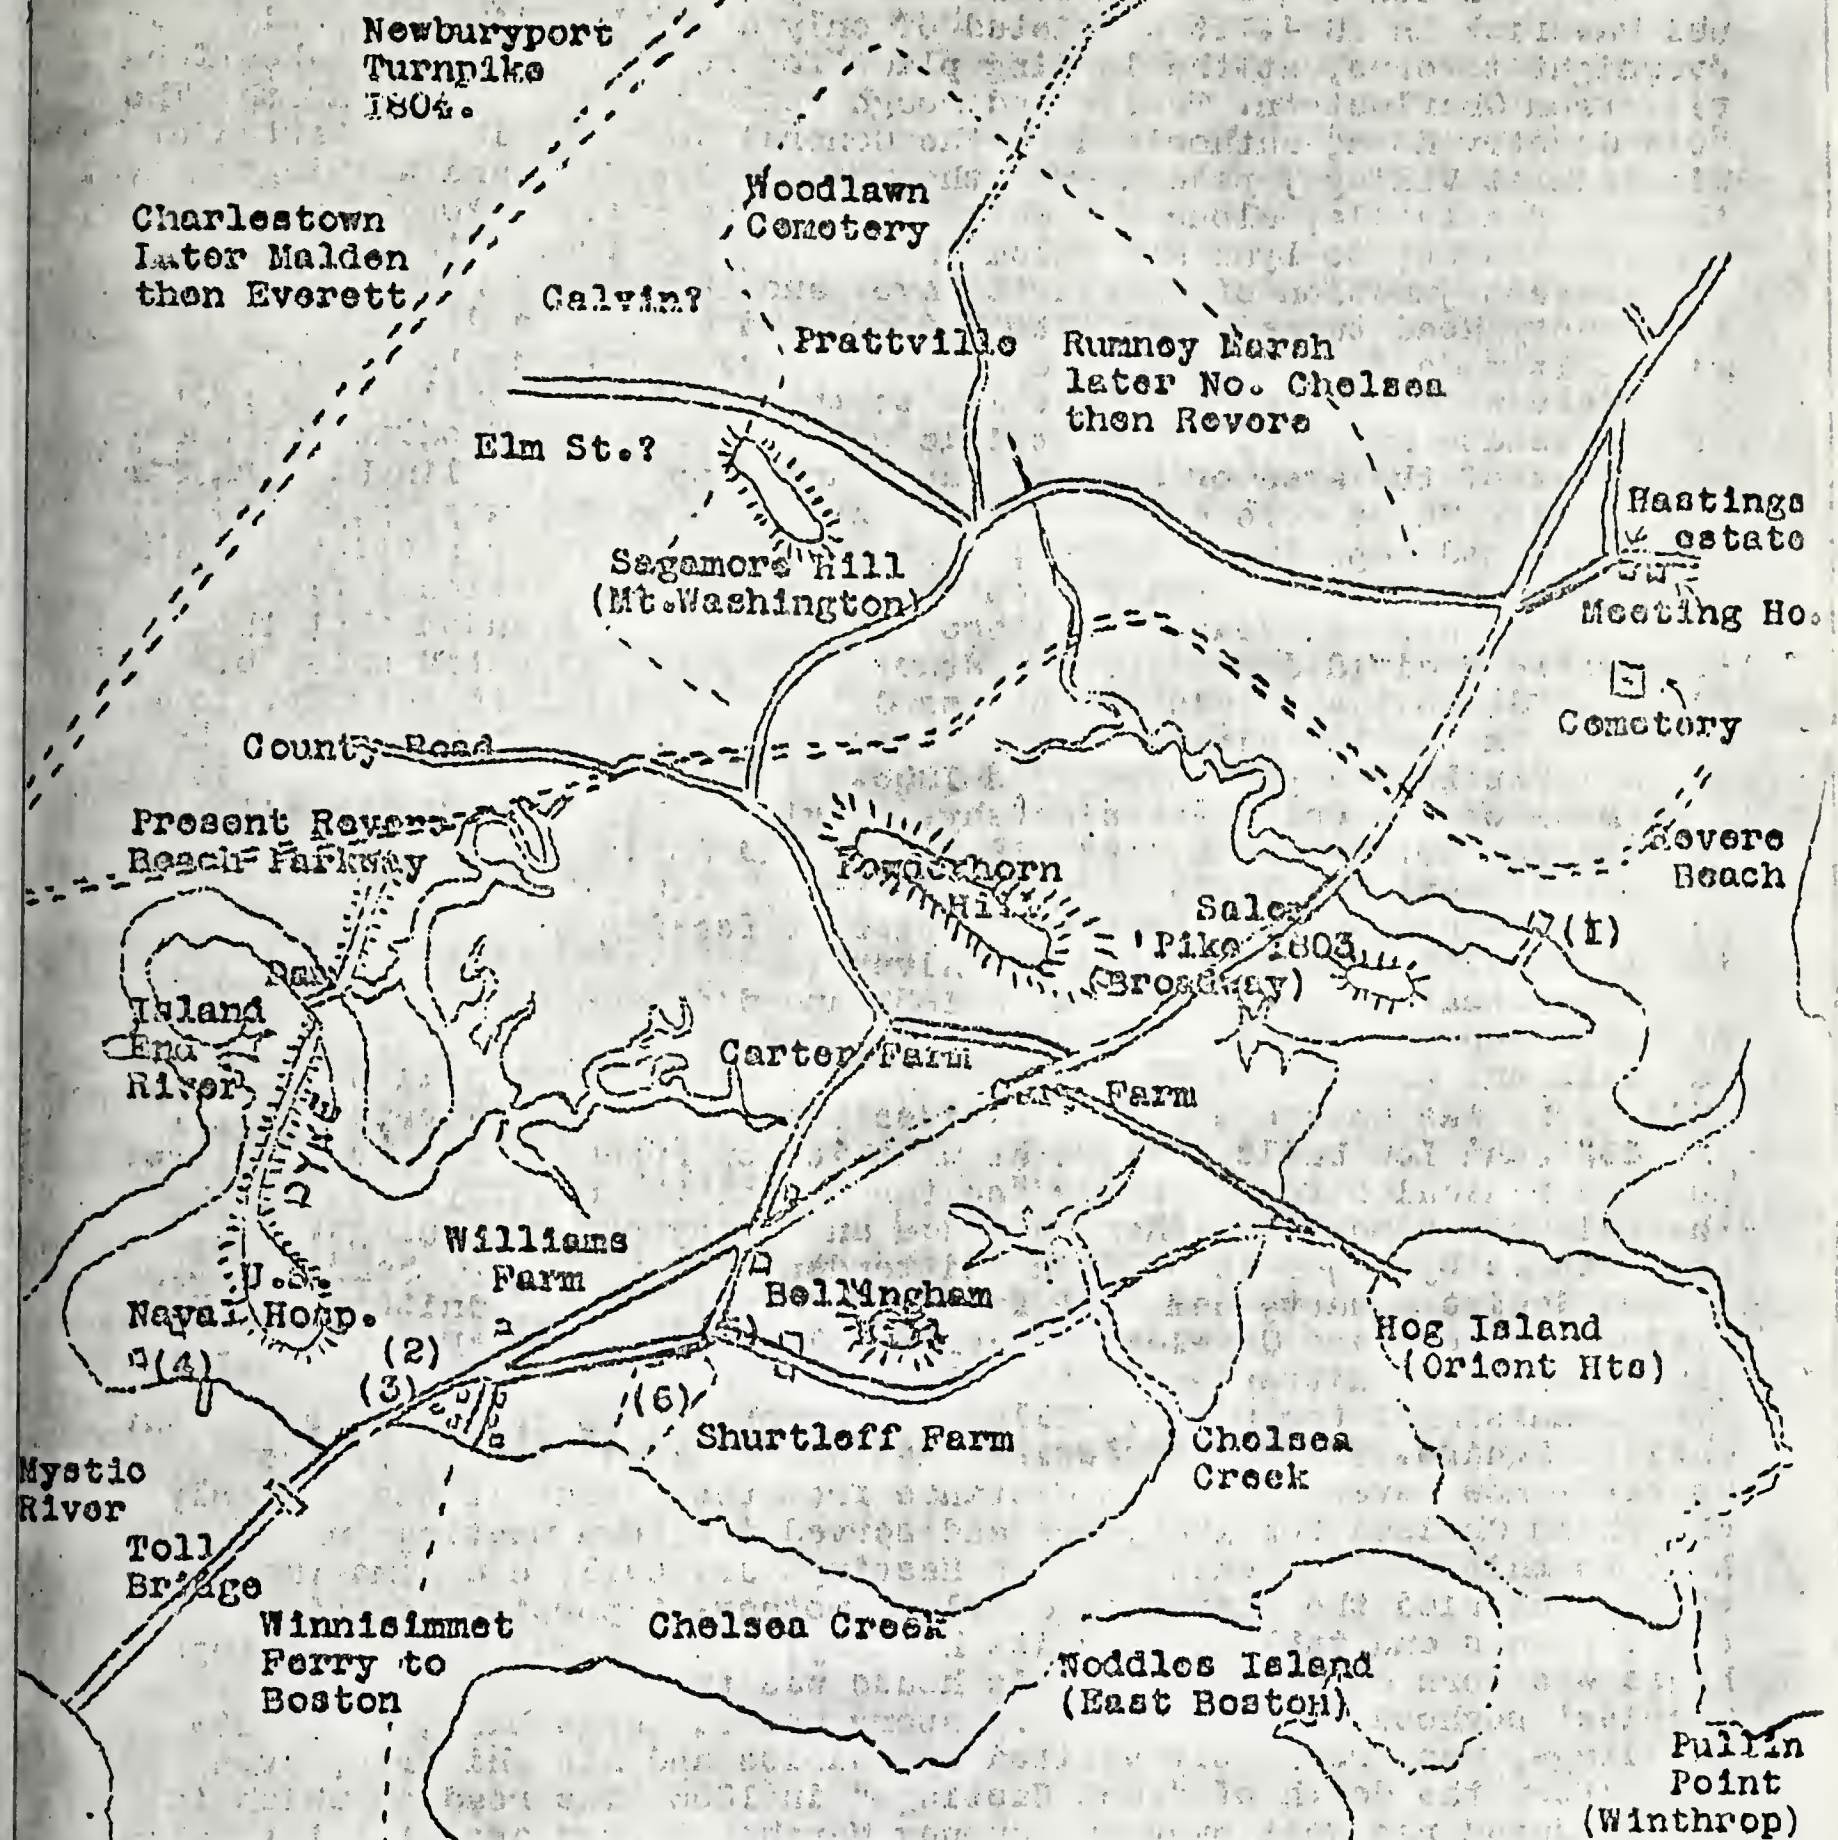

Most of the area of Chelsea was granted to Gov. Bellingham and Sir Henry Vane. There were 4 large farms, as shown on the map, page 10, which boasted imposing mansions;- the scenes of hunting parties and the entertainment of prominent Bostonians and guests of national fame. It was not until the early childhood of Charles Chittenden that these estates were divided and Chelsea started to grow. As noted under his history, Samuel, an uncle of Charles C. was prominent in this development and in the building of the Chelsea - Charlestown bridge when the Salem Turnpike was put through in 1803.

Much of the country was marshy. Calvin C. was one of a committee to acquire certain marsh lands in Malden and Chelsea "lying within the dyke" (see map) in 1792 and was authorized, with others, in 1789 "to make and maintain a dam for the purpose of fencing out the sea from the marsh" lying along Island End River.

Steamboat service started in 1831 and did much to develop the southern part of the town. Previously, most of the population was located in the present Revere, where the church and town hall were. In 1831 there was only one house, besides the taverns, in Ferry Village. In 1832 John Low built a store at what is now Broadway and Everett Ave. and was ridiculed for locating "so far out in the country". But it was the only other public gathering place and "many merry evenings" were spent there by Major Chase, Ben Chittenden, Squire Knapp, Samuel Batchelder, Squire Stuart, Samuel Pratt, J.S. Edwards, Samuel Chittenden, Dr. Stedman, Joseph and Charles Hanscome, Col. Fay and the "Ferry hands". Samuel and Ben Chittenden were uncles of Charles Chittenden.

Winnisimmet (or Ferry) Village was probably at or near the present Chelsea Square. The first Meetinghouse was erected in 1710 at the Center - now Revere, a short distance from the beach. It was the only church in Chelsea for 126 years and served for town meetings until 1805. Next to this meetinghouse, Abijah Hastings Jr. built his home (map) when he married the sister of Charles' mother. A portion of this church still stands and tablets tell its history, but the adjoining Hastings house was torn down in 1937. This house was the scene of much of Charles' boyhood and the large 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ story house, large barn, with out-buildings, was frequently visited by Charles and his children, even long after the death of "Aunt Hastings" in 1866. The road on which it was situated ran west over the Rumney Marshes, after crossing the Salem Turnpike, and joined the Old Country Road.

"Abijah Hastings, Sergeant, Lieut, and Adj., died in 1826, aged 95 years. He was very active in town affairs; was town clerk and for years both he and his wife were teachers in the schools of Rumney Village and Pullin Point."

The original Chelsea, comprising Winnisimmet Village, Pullin Point, Rumney Marsh and Prattville, were set off from Boston in 1739 and included what is now Revere, Winthrop and a part of Saugus. In 1846 Rumney Marsh and Pullin Point became No. Chelsea. Gas pipes were laid in 1852 and the first sewer was built in 1846. Chelsea beach, later called Crescent Beach, is now Revere Beach. The toll bridge connecting the end of the new Salem Turnpike with Charlestown, was built in 1803.

In 1833 a school house was built near the corner of Chestnut St. and Washington Ave. which Charles' children probably attended. Another school, erected on Shawmut St. in 1845, was moved to Shurtleff St. and then to Walnut St. in 1855.

The first church was built in 1710, as noted above. Some families living along the Country Road joined the church in Lynn, while some in So. Chelsea attended the North Church in Boston (built 1650) which was not far from the landing place of the Winnisimmet ferry. In 1837 a Baptist church was built at Broadway and Second St. and attended by Charles' family. Later a large brick church was built at Central Ave. and Shurtleff St.

The Naval Hospital was erected in 1835 and the Marine Hospital in 1857. The bridge to East Boston, (Noddles Island) was built in 1834. North Chelsea, set off in 1846, later became Revere. Chelsea took on the City form of government in 1857. Woodlawn Cemetery was incorporated in 1850. The great Chelsea fire of April 12, 1908, destroyed all the buildings with which Charles Chittenden was connected. This fire burned over an area $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles long and $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile wide. It destroyed practically all of the business section; most of the municipal buildings and over 2800 other buildings. Over 17400 people were made homeless. Because of the strong wind, the fire spread very rapidly, reaching the limit of the burned area in five hours. Over 18 people were killed. The heat was so intense that granite curbstones were crumpled to powder and two fire engines were burned.

Some of the Acadians, banished from Grand Pré, N.S. in 1755, were cared for and settled in Chelsea.

The population of Chelsea, when Charles C. was born, was about 600. Then new homes began to be built on the slopes of Bellingham Hill and Powderhorn Hill. It was under 1000 at the coming of the steamboat ferry then increased rapidly, during the time of Samuel and Charles' building activities and reached over 5000 by 1848. The new Broadway and Washington Ave. became the scenes of extensive house building, while the marsh area, reclaimed by the Island End River dam and dyke attracted home building of a lower class.

Letter from A.A.Chittenden to his son in Harvard, Mar. 3, 1891.

Dear Herbert:-

As congratulations are in order, we at home most heartily congratulate you on the honor you have attained in your election to the "Phi Beta Kappa", - made possible only by your own long continued earnest endeavors, acknowledged and approved by your associates. Such honor is more than we had dared to hope for you.

It is with grateful hearts we know the good use you have made of your opportunities; your noble aspirations, manly character in religion and in the cause for the right; are just cause for our gratitude. God's blessings for you, - are the prayers of Your Parents.

MARY SEALEY (SECTLEY) BOWDLEAR was the daughter of Thomas Sealey, of Boston and ----- of Wilmington. (A Thomas Seale m. Mary Barnes Dec. 31, 1783, but no Mary Barnes has been found in Wilmington statistics.) She was living at 7 Crescent Ct., off Friend St., in 1835. Later she lived with her son-in-law, Charles Chittenden, in Chelsea and on Federal St. (C.B.C. Journal).

It is uncertain whether Thomas was the son of John or Samuel.

Mary Sealey obtained a grant of 160 acres of Government land through a Sealey who was a soldier in the Rev. Army. This soldier lived on Hawkins St., Boston, to which he gave the name of "Black Strap Alley" on account of a distillery being there. The grant of land was sold for $1 an acre, with which money Mary bought a lot in Woodlawn Cemetery, where she was later buried. Her brother, Wm., was a mariner. His son, Isaac, went to Placeville, Cal., on the ship Oscar, in the gold rush.

Little can be found about the ancestors of Mary Rebecca Bowdlear, on the side of her mother, Mary Sealey, partly because of the varieties of spelling of the name. A col. Joseph Cilley, of Weare, N.H., served under Gen. Washington. His portrait hangs in the State House in Concord, N.H. Families of the name are found all through eastern New England.

Some of the spellings found are: Seale; Seoley; Selley; Sele; Seley; Scilly; Silley; Cila; Cilley; Cylley, etc.

The Ingraham Coat of Arms, (opposite page) descended to them from ancestors in England; as well as title of land of what is now the City of Leeds, through the will of JOSEPH WILSON of Yorkshire, England, to his Cowell and Ingraham heirs. This property was never acquired, altho' attempts were made as late as 1860, when scrip was issued to finance the legal investigation in Providence, R.I.

JOSEPH WILSON'S daughter, SARAH married Edward Cowell. SARAH COWELL, dau. of Edw. married Timothy Ingraham in 1690. JOHN INGRAHAM, 1701-1778, married Mary Fry in 1723. JOSEPH INGRAHAM, THEIR SON, b. 1737, lived till 1801 in Boston; - mariner.

Joseph had a sister, Hannah and another, Martha, b. 1735, m. 1759, d. 1819. A sister, Lydia, lived in Gilmingtong, N.H. One of the Ingrahams married a Timothy Wilkins of Carlisle. A Joseph was baptised in the First Church of Boston in 1689, married a Mary McFarland in 1713, moved to Middletown, Conn. and d. 1745.

JOSEPH INGRAHAM was married Mar. 17, 1765, to Mary Sumner of Boston, (1759-1804), the daughter of Ebenezer Sumner and Elizabeth Cox. They lived in Boston where he was engaged in the shipping trade with the West Indies. His children:-

MARY, b. 1767, married Caleb Pratt; their daughter MARY married William Wilkins of Carlisle. Their descendants, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Wilkins still live in that town.

SUSAN ("Sukey") Langdon I. b. Sept 10, 1770, d. Jan. 16, 1866.

MARTHA ("Patty") Ingraham, b. Sept. 6, 1780, married Ebenezer Chittenden Feb. 20, 1803 and became the maternal ancestor of the later Chittendons of this history.

With this large family of children, Joseph Ingraham lived in or near Boston, engaged in the shipping trade and died Feb. 3, 1801. Well along in life, however, he continued his activities at sea and was probably the Joseph Ingraham, Capt. of the brig "Hope" of Boston, who made discovery (as he supposed), of a cluster of islands off the N.W. coast of America, in 1791, giving them the names of United States presidents (?) and claiming them as possessions of this country.

Besides Patty (Mrs. Ebenezer C.), her sister Susan ("Sukey") I. Ingraham was best known to the Chittenden family for two or three generations, as she had a long and eventful life. Born Sept 10, 1770, she lived until Jan. 16, 1866 and experienced something of the war of the Revolution, the war of 1812 and the Civil War. She brought up a large family and lived the last part of her life in No. Chelsea.

Her first husband was Wm. Nye and a son William was born in 1793. He followed the sea, became a ship captain and was captured by the British in the war of 1812 and imprisoned in Dartmoor prison in England. He was unmarried and died in 1869.

Her second husband, whom she married in 1797, was Abijah Hastings Jr., a ship master, born Jan. 2, 1762, son of Lt. Abijah Hastings, one of the Selectmen of Chelsea. They had 7 children. Again she became a widow in 1852 and lived the last 34 years of her life in the home in No. Chelsea, built by her husband, known as the Hastings Estate. It was situated in what later became Revere, opposite (?) the Revere churches. (see map).

Susan Hastings "Sukey" was affectionately known as Aunt Hastings by her Chittenden nephews and nieces, as well as by their children, who frequently visited the Hastings home. With their cousins, they enjoyed the open stretch of sea shore nearby, which later became the resort of Revere Beach. Abijah Hastings, 3rd, her youngest son, born 1810, was the cousin frequently mentioned by Charles Chittenden as a boyhood associate. While we know little more than that he was the father of four boys and five girls, most of whom died early, it was from his daughter, Susan Estelle Hastings, born 1856, - and still living in the family home about 1900 - that many of the items of this branch of the Ingrahams were obtained. The other children of Aunt Hastings were: Lydia, born 1812; Susan, born 1798, married an Ellis; Mary, born 1800, married George Donnie. Their daughter Caroline married Col. William W. Clapp; Martha, b. 1804; Joseph, b. 1806; John, b. 1808; and a dau. Lydia. At 80 years of age, "Sukey" was in excellent health and was said to have walked on one occasion, from the Hastings home to Boston. On her 90th birthday, (Sept. 10, 1860), a poem of 22 verses was presented as a tribute to her eventful life, and later appeared in the Chelsea newspaper.

Eliza Frothingham Noyes, (cont. from P. 7) the daughter of Rev. Wm. Withington, was born in Ashfield, Mass., March 24 (?) 1826. She married Horace Pearson Noyes in Dec. 1850 and died Jan. 14, 1908. Horace was the son of Silas and Judith Noyes and was born in 1819. In 1820, Silas purchased the old Noyes house on Parker St., Newbury, built about 1646 by Rev. James Noyes, the first minister in Newbury. Horace died in Jan. 1893 and his sister, Mary Coffin Noyes, in 1895. "Aunt" Mary was the very hospitable hostess of A. Percival and Roger C. Chittenden on their occasional visits to Newbury. Perce and Roger took violin lessons of Miss Susan Lunt, who then lived opposite the Noyes house and they took part in her annual recitals in June, spending the nights, at any rate, in the Noyes House.

The children of Horace P. and Eliza F. Noyes were:-

Helen Maria N. b. Nov. 28, 1851. m. Stillman Atherton Tucker of Milton, Feb. 21, 1878. She died March 29, 1923.

Eliza Withington N. (Lila), b. Aug. 8, 1855, and d. Jan. 19, 1935. She was unmarried and lived with the Stillman Tuckers.

Katherine Dodge N. b. about 1858 and lived about 16 years. All three daughters were born in the Noyes house, Parker St. Newbury Oldtown and buried in the cemetery opposite the old Newbury church except Helen, who was buried in the Tucker lot in Milton. The family moved to 276 Washington St., Dorchester, during the Civil War.

Helen and Stillman Tucker had two sons:-

Malcolm Noyes T. b. Sept. 1884, lived about three weeks.

Robert Withington T. b. Aug. 31, 1886. He married Julia Theresa Spurr of Round Hill, Annapolis Co., Nova Scotia, June 29, 1929. Their daughter, Helen Alina T. was born July 26, 1930. She is now, (1944-5) in her fourth year at the Girl's Latin School in Boston. She was flower-girl at Francella Chittenden's wedding. Robert is engaged in civil engineering, around Boston and lives at the old home on Washington St., Dor.

Robert Tucker was born in Dorsetshire, Eng., in 1602, and this County contains today many influential families of that name. A John Tucker from Weymouth, Eng., was a member of Parliament for 20 years, before the Revolution. The towns of Dorchester, Milton and Weymouth are neighboring towns in Dorsetshire and from this vicinity a party was made up in 1635 to emigrate to New England. Robert Tucker was one of that party and was then about 33 years old. They settled at a place called by the Indians Wassagussset, to which the English gave the name Weymouth. Robert Tucker held offices in Weymouth in 1647 - 51 and his 9 children are supposed to have been born there. He lived at one time in Gloucester and was town recorder there. He moved to Milton about 1662 and purchased a large tract of land on Brush Hill in 1663. He was probably preceded here by some of his family, as his land was bounded westerly by that of James Tucker, who is supposed to have been his son. He held the office of Recorder in Milton in 1669, selectman in 1674 and '80 and Repr. to the Great and General Court of Mass. in 1680 & '81. He was one of the 12 original covenanters forming the church in Milton; signed Apr. 24, 1678. He died March 9, 1682, aged 80, leaving his widow and 8 children, of whom the youngest was 8 children.

(2) Manasseh was born in 1654, and m. Waitstill Sumner Dec. 27, 1676. He was one of the original 12 covenanters of the Milton church. His wife was admitted Oct. 22, 1682. He was ordained Deacon June 28, 1719. He was Ensign of the military company, and bought land of his father on Brush Hill in 1670. Manasseh died in 1743, aged 89. The oldest of his eight children was David.

(3) Ebenezer was born Dec. 22, 1683. Jan. 30, 1706/7 he m. Jane Clapp. (1 Edward, 2 Ezra, 3 Jane). He was admitted to the Milton church May 23, 1703 and she on May 4, 1707. He died May 14, 1724 aged 41. The oldest of his seven children was

(4) William.

William was born Dec. 2, 1707 and m. Rachel Adams Dec. 26, 1728. She was born June 24, 1711, a daughter of Edward Adams. She and her husband were admitted to the Milton church July 13, 1729. Rachel died Jan. 25, 1744/5 and William on Dec. 29, 1771, aged 64. The oldest of their five children was

(5) Ebenezer.

Ebenezer was born Dec. 5, 1729 and on Jan. 19, 1764, m. Elizabeth Atherton, who was born May 20, 1744 and died Dec. 7, 1838. (1 Humphrey, 2 Consider, 3 Humphrey, 4 Elizabeth). Ebenezer died Feb. 25, 1802, aged 75, leaving his widow. Of his 7 children, the third was

(6) Atherton.

Atherton was born July 24, 1768. He m. Joanna Trow Nov. 20, 1786. Joanna was born in Charlestown April 27, 1774 and was an infant in arms at the time of the Battle of Bunker Hill. (1 Bartholomew, 2 Bartholomew, 3 Joanna). Her grandfather, Capt. Bartholomew (1), fought at Louisburg,

Cape Breton. While her father, Bartholomew Trow (2) was fighting in the Battle of Bunker Hill, her mother took the infant Joanna and a sister away in a boat to escape the British gun-fire. The following is copied from an account written in G. Herbert C's note book by his mother, Caroline T.(C)C. (it is in her own handwriting).

"I remember my grandmother telling me about the 17th of June, 1775. Her father, Bartholomew Trow was in the battle and her mother took the children, the baby being my grandmother, down to the river because their house was burning. The British were firing upon the houses. A boatman at the river took them into the boat and as one child was afraid to get in and he could not wait, great-grandmother had to put the baby under the seat and pull the child into the boat by her red cloak. They rode up the Mystic River as far as [?] where they landed. Great-grandmother with the children met a man who told them of a house which had been vacated by the occupants, who had left all their furniture there. He advised her to enter in and use it. So she took the children in and cooked for them and as night came, put them to bed there. Grandmother told me that after the war, they settled in Boston, where they had a store."

The Atherton Family is one of the most ancient among the ancient names of England, Lancashire being their home from time immemorial. Through the central part of this territory the Athertons had immense possessions which were accumulated by marrying heiresses, until they became one of the richest families among the great commoners of England. The town of Atherton is ten miles north of Manchester, in Lancashire. Here the family originated and lived in a hereditary line beginning with Robert de Atherton, in the time of King John, to Richard A. in the 18th century, where the line ended with his daughter, who married Lord Gilford. The motto of the family was an appropriate one: "Fata tuori" - to "maintain acquired possessions". The original manor house was called Lodge Hall, which is now in ruins. Afterwards Atherton Hall was erected and in 1723 was begun the second structure of that name; - an immense pile which was reckoned among the famous buildings of Eng. It was completed in 1743, at an expense estimated at $7,000,000. After standing for more than a century, it was taken down by the second Lord Gilford. A spacious farm house has been built on the demesne, which is ornamented by a lake 3/4 of a mile in length.

From a document found somewhere in Lancashire, it is assumed that our Humphrey Atherton was the son of Edmund Atherton of Winstanley and that he was born in Oct. 1609. It is supposed that he came to this country in the ship James, from Bristol, Eng., in 1635, with his wife Mary and the three oldest children, Jonathan, Isabel and Elizabeth. Consider was the first of his children born in New Eng.

Humphrey Atherton was admitted freeman and grantee of land in Dorchester in 1637. He early showed a military taste, joined the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and was its Captain from 1650 to 1658. He commenced the first "trainband" in Dorchester in 1644. In 1649 he was commissioned Major of the Suffolk Regiment which made him the most important military officer in the colony, which position he held till his death. He also held many public offices. He had great experience and skill in treating with the Indians with whom his public duties frequently brought him in contact. He assisted Elliot, the Apostle to the Indians, in behalf of the Neponset tribe and with Lieut. Roger Clapp, laid out for them a tract of 600 acres at Punkapog. In character, he is said to have been a lively, courageous man, slow of speech, but prompt and energetic in business, of a cheerful spirit and full of patriotism. His great courage and presence of mind were strikingly exhibited when he was sent, with twenty men, to Pessacus, an Indian sachem, to demand the arrears to the colony of three hundred fathom of wampum. Pessacus put him off for some time with dilatory answers, not suffering him to come into his presence. Atherton finally led his men to the door of the wigwam, entered himself with pistol in hand, leaving his men without, and seizing Pessacus by the hair of the head, drew him from the midst of a great company of his attendants, threatening, if any of them interfered, that he would dispatch them. Pessacus paid what he demanded and the English returned in safety.

His son (2) Consider, married Ann Anibal in 1671 and had (3) Humphrey, who lived in Stoughton with his wife Elizabeth. The Clapp family in England.

Burke's Heraldic Register is the basis for proof that the Clapp family has lived in England from a remote period. These proofs are summed up in "The Clapp Family in America". "Clapp, (Salcombe, Co. Devon) the family of Clapp, originally Clapa, claims Danish extraction and was long settled in Devonshire, in which county it possessed the estate of Salcombe, which eventually devolved on Sarah, daughter of Dr. Kessel, of Ottery, St. Mary-----".

"Osgod Clapa was a Danish Noble at the Court of King Canute, who was King of England from 1017 to 1036. From him it is supposed, that Clapham, Co. Surrey, where he had a country-house, derived its name".

"Clappa, an obsolete Saxon name:- Clapp, Clapps, Clapson. Clapham is the ham or house of Clappa, a Saxon who held this manor in the time of Edward the Confessor".

As for the Coat-of-Arms, the following is copied from the Clapp book and refers to the enlargement from the Clapp book on the opposite page.

"Of the coats-of-arms in possession of different branches of the family, the publishers present the above as a genuine Clapp arms, but without laying claim to it as belonging specially, if at all, to the American branch of the family. It was undoubtedly the arms of some family of the name in England, though in what line of descent has not been ascertained. The legend attached to it, however, at the social meeting at Nantasket was introduced as the motto of the family, and no objection can be made to such use of it".

"A field vair is composed of pieces of fur, or conventionally of silver and blue out to resemble the flower of the campanula, and opposed to each other in rows. When the pieces are of different colors, as above, they are specified and described as vairs of these colors. When the pieces, shield-shaped as above shown, of the same color, are arranged base against base, the field is described as counter-vair, or counter-vairé." Another description of a coat-of-arms is given on page XLII. "Quarterly, first and fourth, ermines, three battle axes; second, sable, a griffin passant, argent; third, sable, an eagle with two heads, displayed within a border engrailed, argent."

Immigration.

There are authentic accounts of six Clapps who came to America. Of these, five were among the first settlers of New England, landing at Dorchester between 1630 and 1640. The sixth landed at a later date on the southern coast. Some of the latter have a tradition that their ancestor came from Hesse-Cassel in Germany and settled in Philadelphia. Some of the name now living in Canada have a tradition that their emigrant ancestry consisted of three brothers who came from Wales during the early settlement of New England.

Of the five who settled in Dorchester, Thomas, Nicholas and George Gilson Clapp were sons of Richard Clapp of Dorchester, England. Edward and Roger were the sons of his brother, name unknown, who lived in Salcombe, a small town near the western coast of England, twelve miles from Exeter. All were in comfortable circumstances in England and left their native land with those earnestly religious men who felt themselves oppressed and hindered in growth by the Established Church and desired religious freedom.

IN THE YEAR 1649

Roger Clapp, the son of Richard's brother, was born in Salcombe Regis, Devonshire, England, April 6, 1609. He sailed from Plymouth in the "Mary and John" March 20, 1630, landing at Nantasket on May 30, 1630. They reached Dorchester about June 17, as its first settlers. He is supposed to have lived in a house still standing, on Willow St. off Boston St.

Roger was an active and influential member of the community and his Memoirs are considered one of the most authentic documents concerning Colonial times. He was Capt. of the Dorchester Military Co. and later Capt. of the "Castle" (Fort Independence, on Castle Island in Boston Harbor). Here he lived for 21 years, then moved to Boston, towards the end of his life. He was also a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. His funeral, in 1690, was attended by the Governor and by the General Court, with every mark of respect for one who had done so much for the civil and religious life of the new town of Dorchester. His stone, in the burying ground of King's Chappel, Boston, may be seen near the front end of City Hall.

NICHOLAS CLAPP.

Nicholas, the fourth son of Richard Clapp, was born in Dorchester, England, in 1612. He married first, his cousin Sarah Clapp, a sister of Capt. Roger. He lived in the north part of the town, on the westerly side of what is now Boston St., where he had a fruit orchard and cultivated land. The town records of 1667 show he was assessed at the rate of 1/2 penny for each acre of plowed land on the Neck (now So. Boston), but there was no tax on his pasture land. A marble stone marks his grave in the Dorchester North Cemetery near the Stoughton St. side, among those of many of his relatives and contemporaries. Two quaint inscriptions mark the graves of children of some of these early Clapp families, as below.

Subait submitted to her heavenly king Abel his offering accepted is being a flower of that eternal spring His body to the grave
Full three years old she died his soul to bliss in Heaven to wait He lived Novembers twenty
The year was sixteen hundred 48. and no more
The year was sixteen hundred 44.

NATHANIEL CLAPP.

Nathaniel was born Sept. 15, 1640 and died May 16, 1707. He lived near the junction of Boston, Cottage and Pond Streets - the "Five Corners", Dorchester. He was one of the two constables of the town. His oldest son, Nathaniel, graduated from Harvard in 1690 and went to Newport, R.I. as a missionary minister.

JONATHAN CLAPP.

Jonathan was born Aug. 31, 1673 and died Jan. 2, 1723/4. He served as Town Treasurer and Selectman. He married Sarah, the daughter of Barnard Capen. He died possessed of numerous parcels of land. An old corn or grist mill, probably built by Capt. Roger and Nicholas Clapp, was rebuilt in 1712 by Deacon Jonathan Clapp and Humphrey Atherton.

David, b. Sept. 15, Nov. 11, 1720, and d. Aug. 17, 1787. His son David, b. Nov. 30, 1759, d. May 15, 1846, was employed when barely 18 years old, as was his father, in building the fortifications on Dorchester Heights, in March, 1776. Later he was stationed in Cambridge, guarding soldiers of Burgoyne's army, who had been taken prisoners. Still later he served at the Fort on MIDDLE'S Island, now East Boston. Here he found 12 inhabitants, consisting of two families.

In 1755 the elder David purchased a tract of 12 1/2 acres on the north-east side of Jone's hill, Dor. and occupied a house there at the foot of the hill, where his children were born. From the upper portion of this tract an excellent view of Boston, the harbor and Dorchester Bay is obtained. Some of the demonstrations, during the exciting times just before the Revolution, were carried on at this place. A new house, nearby, was built by the son David, in 1794, on Stoughton St., which is still owned by his descendants. Here were born the children by his second wife, Azubah Capen of Stoughton.

DAVID CLAPP.

David, the third David in line, was b. Feb. 6, 1806, mother, Azubah. He died in So. Boston May 10, 1893. He had about 3 acres of the land on Jone's Hill. In 1899 lots were given to each of his children and Salcombe St. was put through; - the name taken from the old English home of Capt. Roger Clapp. Four houses were built, one a double one, housing 5 families; - twelve cousins in a bunch with the resultant good times. All were honored in knowing him as "Grandpa Clapp" - a fine looking, venerable old gentleman with white hair and a tall stove-pipe hat. Some can remember his tales of early life in Dorchester. One was his mention of the site of a bonfire built on the upper portion of the property, the charred remains of which had been shown him by his father. It had been built to celebrate the repeal of the Stamp Act in 1765. David was of the Vith generation in descent from Nicholas. His early schooling was in Dor., where the customary fee of 12 1/2 ¢ per week was collected from each pupil, to pay the teacher. Holidays were few and two weeks a year would about cover all the vacations.

At the usual age of 16, David commenced his apprenticeship in the printing office of Jon Cotton, Jr. Conditions may best be described by reading his journal, which, throughout, is remarkable for its careful observations on the part of so young a person. (see Clapp book).

David finally became a partner in the business, and later owner, under the name of David Clapp and Son. Among the periodicals printed and published by the firm may be named the "Christian Register", several medical journals, the Boston Directory, The N.E. Historical and Genealogical Register, rail-road tickets etc.

On Apr. 9, 1835, he married Mary Elizabeth Tucker, daughter of Atherton Tucker of Milton. They lived at 104 F St. So. Boston. David's sister, Azubah, lived with them until her death and his son David, after the death of his wife, made it his home, with his children. Thanksgiving Days were often celebrated at F St., where all their children and grandchildren gathered for grand times. He was for many years Sr. Warden of St. Matthews Church. He died May 10, 1893 and was followed shortly by his widow, on Oct. 2, 1893. Both were buried in the Clapp tomb, in the Old North Cemetery, Upham's Cor., as were all their children.

Children of David and Mary E. Clapp.

 Sarah Ellen C. B. in So. Boston, Aug. 8, 1847. d. May 13, 1896.

Mary Susannah Clapp.

Mary was a member of the first class of the Boston Normal School, when it was founded in 1852. She attended the Oread Collegiate Institute in Worcester, 1854-6. Later she assisted Miss H.P. Dodge, for a couple of years, in a private school on Codman Hill, in Dorchester. Miss Dodge was her former teacher in both the Normal School and the Oread. She was much interested in the study of Botany and Astronomy. Mary lived with her parents in So. Boston until after their deaths, when she and her sister Lizzie built a double house on Salcombe St. The other half of the house was occupied by her brother David and his family. Here she died Jan. 11, 1909. During her latter years she was invalided with a broken hip.

JOHN COTTON CLAPP.

John was in partnership with his father in the printing office. He was clerk of St. Matthew's Parish from 1861 on, until, on the death of his father, he succeeded him as Senior Warden. He married Julia Curtis, daughter of Horatio N. Crane, July 19, 1865. They lived on E. Fourth St. So. Boston, until they built on Salcombe St., where he died in 1922.

Walter Scott A. IIIrd. b. June 6, 1942.

ELIZABETH ATHERTON CLAPP.

"Aunt Lizzie", like her two sisters, Mary and Ellen, attended the Oread (1854-6). She studied art and painted both landscapes and portraits. She made life-size portraits of four clergymen of St. Matthew's Church.

and several for the Danvers (Mass.) Historical Soc., including one of John G. Whittier. Both she and her sister were devoutly religious and had a beneficial influence on their neighboring nephews and nieces. She was handicapped by deafness, but it did not affect her uniformly sweet disposition.

DAVID CAPEN CLAPP.

Born in So. Boston, David was employed in his father's printing office. He married Constance Laccadie Pierrelée Nov. 13, 1867. They lived on Stoughton St. Dor., until the death of his wife in 1881, when they went to live with his parents in So. Boston. Later they occupied half of the double house on Salcombe St., with his sisters Mary and Lizzie. He was afflicted with cataracts towards the end of his life.

Children:-

Wilfred Atherton C. b. Aug. 6, 1869. He graduated from M.I.T. and was in Government employ on architectural and engineering projects in camps and forts in Portland Me., California, Chicago etc. He married Mary Ashton Kelley June 3, 1896. After retiring, they settled in So. Weymouth, and finally went to live with his sister, Marguerite, on Union St. So. Weymouth. Here Mary Ashton died Dec. 26, 1941.

Daughter:-
